University Plans Expansion of Palmer Square

Princeton's shopping habits may change as a result of some new plans on the drafting board of Princeton University.

One, concrete and immediate, is to convert a University warehouse on University Place near Alexander into a retail store. A lease will be signed this week, if all goes well, with Wa Wa Food Stores, a 124-store chain based in Wawa, Pennsylvania.

The second proposal is nothing new to the Princeton community. It involves on repeatedly in the minds and imaginations of townspeople and University officials. The University owns the land through its controlling interest in Palmer Square, Inc. The University is considering, as it has in the past, a mix of facilities. There would be one and two-bedroom apartments, modestly priced, with retail stores, restaurants and Schaeffer of Kravco, a company which has built successful shopping centers and village developments, and with Cope, Linder and Walmsley, architects of malls at Allentown, Pennsylvania, and Columbia, Maryland. They have been working with Kenneth Sweet, the University's consultant who is responsible for development of the Forrestal property in

Fund Drive at 65%—Your Help Needed

A total of $364,061 in cash and pledges was reported at the latest meeting of the United Fund-Red Cross Campaign leaders. This amount represents 57 per cent of the 1973 goal of $635,000.

Captains of the divisions also reported that gifts in hand but too late for accounting at the report meeting would bring the total to 65 per cent of the goal.

L. L. Vivian, president of the United Fund, expressed his pleasure in the report but cautioned it was no time for over-confidence. "We are coming into the hardest phase of the campaign," he said. "Many persons, merchants, and companies who have given to the Fund in previous years and who probably will give again have not sent in their pledges. How to get them to fulfill their best intentions is our problem at this time."

He was particularly concerned with the slow response to the mailing to residents of area communities which took place more than a month ago. About 17,000 letters with pledge cards and return envelopes were sent out, resulting in gifts equaling 40 per cent of the amount anticipated.

probably a parking garage, says John P. Moran, the University's vice-president for facilities.

No Specific Plans. The development would be relatively low in density. It would be designed to face the Witherspoon area residential community to the north much as the present Palmer Square complex faces Nassau Street.

So far, there are no specifics. The exact number of apartments and the exact number of shops hasn't been decided.

The difference between current proposals and past proposals, Mr. Moran explains, is that this time there is a responsible developer. The University has been conferring with Harold icipated to date. "If everyone would return his or her card," he said, "giving a fair share of income to the twenty community agencies which are members of the Fund, we would be well on our way to attainment of our minimum goal."

Other divisions reported as follows: Data Processing and Management Planning, 88 per cent of goal; Education, 81 per cent; Princeton University, 68 per cent; Research and Industry, 62 per cent; Special Gifts, 50 per cent; Professions, 29 per cent; Mercantile, 25 per cent.

George Peters, Executive Director of the Fund, reminded the workers that the health, recreational and social needs of the communities from Princeton to Hightstown and East Windsor are dependent for their resolution upon the financial undergirding of the twenty agencies. "This is more than a fund raising effort," he said; "it is a barometer of the social climate of the communities in which we live, of how much we care about and are concerned for each other."

The Fund hopes to conclude its appeal by the end of this month.

Plainsboro.

"Harold Schaeffer is optimistic about adding a modest amount of commercial space and some housing to that area," Mr. Moran explains, "with parking, of course. The University can't ignore the problem of a parking garage. The question is who will build and own it? The town itself must play a role."

Various Factors Considered. Mr. Schaeffer reached his optimistic decision, Mr. Moran says, after making a careful analysis of the retail situation, and the effect that regional shopping centers have—and will have—on Princeton.

The next step is to find out whether development is economically feasible, Mr. Schaeffer and Mr. Sweet will take on that assignment, too, and Mr. Moran hopes for a report in about three months.

Throughout, he says, the University will talk with the Princeton Regional Planning Board and with various other community groups. But he doesn't plan formal or serious discussion with the Planning Board until the economics are in.

TOWN TOPICS money, supplemented by other funds, provided his tuition. Gradually, Michael began to enjoy contact with his school friends, and to blossom socially. His nursery-school experience, impossible without TOWN TOPICS assistance, had a double value: it enabled his mother to recover more quickly than she would have otherwise, and it brought Michael happily out of his small shell.

A salary inadequate to support a family of eight—sometimes it's the whole that needs support, not just one of its parts. Mr. G's wages didn't quite go around, the adolescent son was troubled by problems, and in the middle of it all, Mrs. G suddenly needed an operation.

If Mr. G had been forced to take time off in care for his children while his wife was in the hospital, his precarious financial situation would have become even worse. With TOWN TOPICS money, for on-going medical expenses, Social Security money, Family Service provided a Homemaker so that Mr. G could go on working. Family Service also provided counseling to help the family with prescription drugs, and the adolescent son, and special foods ordered by the nutrition counseling so that doctor, the K's labored under the small food budget can be a heavy burden of anxiety and worry. Town Topics funds were used for these special drug and food expenses.

A Homemaker helped Mr. R., too, by providing the motherly care needed by his four pre-school children. Mr. R's wife had abandoned him and the children, and he was desperate for someone to care for his young family while he worked.

Emergency care for only ten days, gave Mr. R. the time he needed to make long-range plans for his children.

What happens to a young unwed mother, rejected by her family? She had had years of abuse and neglect from her family, so the rejection itself was nothing new. But the family refused to feed her, clothe her, or buy any of the necessities she needed.

Illness of another kind threatened a young family with three children, ages 5, 7 and 9. Serious mental illness struck a young husband, and although his plucky wife immediately found a job, her salary would not stretch to pay for an after-school sitter.

The older ones—and seven years old really isn't that "old"—unless you're comparing with five—could take care of themselves after school, but the five-year-old needed someone there when she got home from kindergarten. With Town Topics money, the wife could afford a sitter and continue to work every day of her husband's hospitalization in the knowledge that her family was safe and cared-for.

Home Condemned. When you're five, you walk confidently home and there is someone to take care of you. But when you're 65 and you have no home to walk to because the place you've been renting has been condemned and there isn't anyone to take care of you anyway, you need help, too.

Mrs. M had no savings to pay the deposit on a new apartment. She had other, personal, problems that meant she couldn't rent a room in somebody else's house. She needed to live by herself.

Town Topics funds, matched with money from community organizations provided Mrs. M with the required money for deposit on an apartment. (And for the first time in her life, she had a place of her own with running water and a bath!) Her emotional health has improved, she's in better physical shape and with thrifty budgeting, she can meet her own living expenses.

THIS APPEAL IS MADE ONLY IN TOWN TOPICS. THERE WILL BE NO OTHER SOLICITATION OF ANY KIND. NO ONE BUT YOU WILL EVER KNOW WHETHER OR NOT YOU PASS IT BY.

Checks should be made payable to Town Topics Christmas Fund, and mailed to Town Topics, Box 664, Princeton, New Jersey, 08540. There are no administrative expenses: every penny you contribute goes to help the ones for whom we make, in the memory of Dan D. Coyle, this 27th annual Christmas Appeal.

Township Warns Cyclists: Obey Traffic Rules or Get a Ticket

Cyclists (b) and (c) were warned Monday night by Township Committee and the Township police chief that they may be ticketed from now on for violation of bicycling rules. Police Chief Fred Porter did acknowledge, however, that he doesn't have enough manpower to be really generous in the distribution of summonses.

Committee passed the ordinance regulating traffic on the town's new bike routes: you must ride single file, keep to the right, pass on the left, signal when passing and dismount whenever a "dismount" sign tells you to.

The rules will go into effect when all the bike route signs are up. But the ticketing could begin right away because there are state regulations that have been on the books for some time.

Lights on a night rider are the chief concern. State law says only that a bike must be "equipped" with a light. Committeeman Abbot Low Moffat thinks it's "shocking" that the state doesn't actually require the light to be lit and he made it clear that as a start he wants police to issue tickets when bikes aren't equipped with lights.

"We've never enforced this," observed Traffic Safety Committee chairman Henry J. Frank, "if you start giving tickets out, the public will be up in arms! And if you give tickets to kids, who would have to show up in Juvenile Court."

"I think the public would applaud!" Mr. Moffat retorted.

Incidentally, adult tri-cycles are allowed on bike routes as well as bi-cycles. And the fine is only $25 for breaking a rule. Probably in deference to a very young rider's allowance.

Watch Out! W.B. Butterworth, 240 Snowden Lane, expressed fears for the safety of pedestrians, especially elderly ones, when they must share a six-foot-wide bikeway with eager, homeward-bound scholars. Mr. Moffat said bike routes have been laid out where pedestrian traffic is normally very light, and he assured Mr. Butterworth that both Borough and Township plan an intensive program of safety education for young and old alike.

Action on establishing temporary bike routes was carried over until December 17. Committee member Barbara Smoyer said she was uncomfortable over lack of public awareness about the location of these routes. She expressed particular concern about routes in the Leigh Avenue and Race Street roadways, and one on the south of Leigh Avenue.

Parking Problem. Employees of the Princeton Medical Group—77 of them, joined by several doctors in the Witherspoon Street complex—have petitioned Committee to abolish the two-hour parking limit on Henry Avenue and Witherspoon Street.

Patricia Horcher, speaking for the 77, protested also the requirement that drivers move their parked cars at 4 p.m. from one side of Birch Avenue to the other on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Employees in the Medical Arts Building have to remember to rush out at four p.m. and sometimes forget, she complained.

Mrs. Smoyer asked what had happened to the proposal that these employees use the Community Park recreation area parking lot?

Too far, Ms. Horcher replied. Besides, the walk from the Medical Arts Building to the Community Park lot is a dark one after 5 p.m. in winter.

"It isn't the Township's responsibility to provide parking for these employees," declared Mr. Frank. Shifting cars from one side of Birch to the other was to help street-cleaning, he explained, and hours were set for the convenience of Birch Avenue residents, and not for the convenience of people working in hospital or Medical Arts Building.

Ms. Horcher told Committee that Medical Arts Building employees are not allowed to use Medical Center (hospital) parking lots.

Mayor Jay Bicman promised to confer with officials at both Medical Center and Medical Arts Building, and handed the problem to Mr. Frank's Traffic Safety Committee.

Change Wins. "Tennent Court" will now be "Stuart Close." Committeeman William Sutphin, whose family to Central New Jersey was a memorable feature of the November 19 Committee meeting, bowed graciously in defeat. He thinks the small street—two properties—should remain "Tennent Court." He reported in despair that when he conferred with Kenneth Fisher, one of the two residents who want the name changed, he discovered that Mr. Fisher is English, and therefore patriotically disposed more toward "Stuart" than to "Tennent." "There is an unidentifiable preciousness to the word 'Close' that I object to," said Mrs. Smoyer tartly. She also warned Committee not to waste much more time moving street names around.

Mrs. Smoyer, who lives on Olden Lane, spoke feelingly of the confusion with Olden Avenue, and said she could understand Mr. Fisher's position (he had actually found mail addressed to him, lying on a table in the Seminary's Tennent Hall when he went there to pick up a baby-sitter.) With others at the meeting she began the game of Princeton street-confusion: the two Oldens; two Hillsides; Cherry Valley-Cherry Hill; Pardoe-Pardoe. . .

In other matters, Committee passed the ordinance allowing Planning Board option in deciding whether to require curbs; and anticipating Mrs. Smoyer's gloomy warning, introduced an ordinance re-naming the "A" road, "Stuart Road East." Mr. Sutphin voted "no".

REGULATIONS LISTED For Bike Riders to Follow.

Following a two-week warning period, Township police will start issuing summons to adult bicyclist riders who violate state laws concerning their operation and will turn the names of young offenders over to the juvenile officer, Chief Frederick Porter warned Tuesday.

The decision the Chief said, was not designed to harrass anyone but was reached for the safety of riders and motorists. Pointing out that there are an estimated 15,000 bicycles in the Princeton community, Chief Porter commented: "With that large number coupled with the large number of cars, I'm sure one can see the existing dangers."

State motor vehicles laws pertaining to bicycles require that all be equipped with a

Cooperating handsomely with the energy shortage, the Man has provided temperatures that are averaging 10 to 12 degrees above normal after last weekend's dip below freezing.

The unseasonal warmth was expected to be followed by showers, but for the present, no turn toward December cold is in sight. So far, it's just the record books—in December of 1966, for example, the first week of the 12th month brought a reading of 11 degrees.

white front light and a rear red light or reflector, both visible at 500 feet. Bikes must be equipped with audible signal devices and brakes.

Cyclists must ride to the right of the road as far as possible in single file. Hitching rides on other vehicles, trick riding and riding double is prohibited. Riders must obey all the traffic regulations.

Chief Porter said that his department has received numerous complaints from motorists reporting near misses with cyclists—mainly adults—riding at night without lights and wearing dark clothing

He came down hard on manufacturers. "I think laws should be passed requiring that all bikes have lights and reflectors as standard equipment."

In the Borough, Chief Michael Carnevale reported that enforcement was left mainly to meter maids who have the authority to issue warnings and summonses to cyclists riding on Nassau Street sidewalks.

More than 600 warnings have been issued in the past few months. "I feel it is a deterrent," he said

WHEN COUNCIL MEETS

Next Tuesday. It may be another battle of the sexes next Tuesday when Borough Council holds public hearing on the ordinance to allow an on-duty member of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad to have a ticket-free parking space.

The Squad, so far, has stoutly refused to admit women to membership. It is currently before the bar of the New Jersey Civil Rights Division over denial of membership to a girl student at Princeton High School. (For opposing viewpoints, see Mailbox, page 18).

Borough Council passed a resolution last month limiting the special parking privilege to six months, hoping thereby to suggest to the Squad that admitting women might be a good idea. Council members pointed out that, if women were members, the Squad might not need the parking space. It would be used by a male Squad member who works in the business district.

Also before Council will be the parking garage question. Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week that garage plans probably wouldn't be held up by state air-pollution regulations. He said he might report on the matter Tuesday.

The long-sought-for meeting with Federal environment officials on a regional sewer plan may be next week, Mayor Cawley said. He is drafting a letter to Federal officials urging such a meeting. The letter will be signed by mayors of all six towns in the Stony Brook Regional Sewer Authority.

CAR OVERTURNS

Driver, Passenger Hurt. Two men were cut and injured Friday when their car went out of control on River Road near Herrontown, struck a pole and overturned.

The driver, David S. Moore, 30, Long Valley, N.Y., received severe abrasions of the scalp and lost three teeth. His passenger, Donald W. Sullivan, 40, of Bedminster, required five sutures at Princeton Medical Center to close a laceration of the scalp and sustained contusions of the right shoulder. Their 1962 sedan was described as a total loss.

Mr. Moore, who told police

Princeton "Painfully Perfect," It Says Here

"Painfully Perfect Princeton," but behind the town's "cleanliness, righteousness and opulence" is a "wide-spread malaise" only the wealthy can afford.

Yes, somebody's been peering at Princeton again. In the Philadelphia Inquirer magazine, author Rod Townley finds that Princeton has "no street life," is a town that fears "disorder, warmth and depth" and wants conflict and confusion kept at a distance. He doesn't name the town that adores confusion and conflict.

The writer says he met a woman who had lived in Princeton eight years and had never had an unpleasant conversation with anyone. She decided, therefore, that there's "something wrong with Princeton."

He talked with a black resident who said it was good to know that tradition was strong in Princeton and that the town DOESN'T keep up with the times. Mr. Townley that he had lost control of his car, was charged with drunken driving by Ptl. David Cromwell. A witness, Robert Sedelmeyer of Cranbury, traveling in the opposite direction, told police he had to pull off the road to avoid being hit by the Moore car that had crossed over into his lane just prior to the accident.

Borough Driver Charged. In the Borough last week, John C. Yeager, 41, 238 Witherspoon Street, was charged with drunken driving, after his car hit a utility pole at the intersection of Moore Street and Park Place. He refused medical treatment for a small cut over his eye.

After impact, the car continued on to the intersection of Wiggins. When were extensively damaged. It is owned by George L. McGowan III of 246 John Street.

NAB SECOND SUSPECT in Parking Meter Thefts. Borough police have charged the second suspect who escaped November 13 as they investigated a robbery of parking meters on William Street.

Lots of little circles of people: tennis players, flute-players, macrame-makers, academics, and strict zoning ordinances that keep "a wrought-iron glove on the shoulder of commerce."

In the end, Mr. Townley says the names of Nassau Street stores alone, are enough to make "visitors squirm with envy and residents harrumph with conceit." But, he adds, "the world needs a few Nassau Streets to keep the starch in its collars."

Harrumphed lately?

Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt arrived, he noted that Mr. Yeager was trying to restart his car which had rolled backwards against the curb. He was unable to get a statement from him because of his condition.

Mr. Yeager was taken to police headquarters and given a Breathalyzer test and also charged with leaving the scene of an accident. The car's right front, hood and radiator police on the basis of information sent over a teletype by Borough police. He was picked up by Detectives Anthony Ranfone and Douglas Watson and charged with larceny.

Hammell was later sent to the Mercer County Workhouse in lieu of $10,000 bail.

His older brother, Harry B. Hammell, 36, was caught in November after a chase through back yards and alleys by Ptl Victor Fasanella and Ptl Peter Hanley. He was charged with allegedly using a key to empty meters in the Park Place, Witherspoon and Tulane Street lots and stealing approximately $1100. Some $40 of that, discarded by the fleeing suspects, was recovered by police.

After being arraigned, the older Hammell was released on $10,000 bail.

The arrest of Herbert Hammell, according to Chief Michael Carnevale, was the result of a long, comprehensive investigation by Del Ranfone. His coin-filled jacket that he had abandoned while being chased was recovered by police and used in the investigation.

Chief Carnevale also reported that four other shortages totalling some $3000 had been discovered in parking meter receipts earlier this fall.

WHEN FUEL OIL IS LOW

Reach for Telephone. If you run short of fuel oil for heating and your supplier turns you down, you can call a special Borough-Township emergency telephone number and municipal officials will try to help you out. The offer applies to home-owners and small businesses.

The telephone number hasn't been decided on yet, Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week, but it will be announced before your fuel tank gets down to THERE.

The emergency danger point comes when you have only one week's supply left, although Township Mayor Jay Bleiman said he wasn't sure how a householder would know when the tank got that dry, without a meter. "Maybe you know, when you're out," the Mayor suggested.

It's all going to be done under the Civil Defense Disaster Control director. In Princeton, that's Captain Geoffrey Sage. His deputy for energy is William Cherry who will develop the procedures for everyone to follow.

Last Friday, municipal officials met with the area's three dealers—Princeton Fuel Oil, Nassau Oil and Lawrence Fuel—to work out plans. Dealers say they will try to monitor customers' tanks to forestall the one-week

DR. RAMONA TO RETIRE

At End of Year. After a 37-year career practicing medicine in Princeton, Dr. J. Mercer Rampona will retire on December 31. He will leave the offices at 272 Nassau, and move to North Carolina.

A Specialist in internal medicine, Dr. Rampona arrived in Princeton on New Year's Day, 1936. At that time, Princeton had seven doctors and a hospital with 50 beds. Dr. Rampona was the first Princeton physician to be accepted by the American Board of Internal Medicine, but he is always the first to admit that his passion for medicine is equalled - almost - by a passion for Princeton football.

He cites as his major avocational accomplishment the recruitment of All-American Frank McFee, one of many football players who were attracted to Princeton University by the physician's influence.

Originally, the physician was an engineer. He was graduated from Cornell in 1925, and served as chief combustion engineer for several midwestern manufacturing companies over the next few years.

But the pull of medicine was strong, and he entered the University of Chicago School of Medicine, graduating with his brother, Louis, a Princeton ophthalmologist.

Dr. Rampona is consultant to both Princeton University and Carrier Clinic, and is an assistant clinical professor in internal medicine for the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey - Rutgers Medical School. He was president of the medical staff of the Medical Center of Princeton, in 1950-51, and is

Bizzare Turn Found in Carpi Murder Case

An investigation by the New York Times has cast new shadows into the Carpi murder case.

Mrs. Laura Carpi, a 37-year-old Princeton housewife, was reported missing from her home at 213 State Road on February 8, 1971. Four months later a body was found floating in New York's East River. One and a half months after that, the Medical Examiner's office in New York identified the body with the help of Princeton dentist Dr. Richard L. McClelland. At that time, July 23, 1971, the Medical Examiner issued a verdict to police that the death was a homicide. A bullet hole had been found in the skull. Mrs. Carpi's husband, the businessman Colin Carpi from whom she had been separated for about a year, was arrested and charged with the murder on July 24.

Mr. Carpi pleaded innocent, and is scheduled to stand trial in Superior Court beginning January 2.

The Times investigation, however, has revealed that an initial examination of Mrs. Carpi's then unidentified body led the Medical Examiner to conclude that her death was due to accidental drowning.

Severed Head. During the time in the morgue, however, the head was severed from the body. The next week, the curator of the Medical Examiner's museum reported that he had discovered a bullet hole in the head.

At that point the body was exhumed, an autopsy was performed, and Dr. McClelland, who had reportedly done extensive dental work on Mrs. Carpi before her death, was brought to New York to see if the unidentified body could be that of the Princeton mother of four.

Why the head had been severed, or why the skull was being cleaned and prepared by the curator of the Medical Examiner's museum, were facts not immediately explained by the newspaper. The Times raised the possibility, by innuendo at least, that the skull was being prepared as an ornament for some official's desk.

That was denied by the Medical Examiner's office. The Times, however, quoted one source as saying: "It's ironic that they kept this head for somebody's desk. Because if they hadn't they'd never have known there was a bullet in that skull and there would have been no murder trial."

Hearing Requested. The information did open the door for new legal maneuvering in the case.

Mr. Carpi's attorney, Gerald Stockman of Trenton, has asked New Jersey Superior Court Judge Arthur A. Salvatore for a hearing to determine whether or not the prosecution "willfully suppressed evidence materially favorable to the defendant."

Under New Jersey law the prosecution in a murder case is bound to make all such information available to the defense.

The Times reported that its investigation showed that neither the prosecution nor the defense nor the parents of Mrs. Carpi knew of the original burial or of the initial certification of death, which was death by asphyxia by drowning, pending police investigation.

Judge Salvatore was scheduled to consider this week Mr. Stockman's request for a hearing.

PHS GIRLS ARRESTED

On Marijuana Charges. Two 17-year-old Township girls, both students at Princeton High School, were arrested last week by Borough police on marijuana charges. Chief Michael Carnevale said that the arrests were the result of an on-going police investigation of drug abuses.

One was arrested late Saturday afternoon in a store service to his patients, his alleged sale of marijuana. The other was charged with possession of more than 25 grams of marijuana.

Both were processed by Borough juvenile officer Det. Douglas Watson and later released to their parents. Taking part in the arrests were Detectives Timothy Huizing, Thomas Michaud and Ptl. Ronald Holliday.

Police declined to identify the purchaser of the drug.

students, both 16, were arrested last week by police after purchasing a quart of beer from Community Liquors, 23 Witherspoon Street. One had a forged registration card in his possession, Chief Carnevale reported. The arrests were made by off-duty Ptl David Lewis.

The students were later released to Lawrenceville School authorities. They will be processed by juvenile officers.

Police also charged the store clerk, Robert G. Butts, with violating the state's alcoholic beverages control regulations. He was scheduled to appear in Borough Court this Wednesday afternoon.

TEENAGER CHARGED

In Liquor Driver Assault. Two Princeton 17-year-olds were arrested by police last week in connection with the holdup and mugging of a young driver for the Wine and Game Shop.

The two were arrested on Witherspoon Street near Lytle by Detectives Thomas Michaud and Timothy Huizing. One was charged with conspiracy to commit robbery and the other with being under the influence of marijuana.

The driver, who was beaten about the head, had $50 stolen from his wallet, police said.

The youths were turned over to Borough juvenile officer Douglas Watson for processing.

SEVEN ARE FINED

For Speeding. Seven Princeton area residents were fined Monday by Judge Philip Carchman in Borough Court for speeding.

Paying $20 each were Edward A. McEwen, 25, 161 John Street; Mary A. Florence, 42, 677 Cherry Hill Road; Joanne M. French, 6 Commons Street, Cranford; and Ronald C. McGonogal, 35, 25 Bearbrook Road, Princeton Junction. Ricardo Skipworth, 20 19 Lytle Street, was fined $31. Teunnis Everson, 22, Hollow Road, Skillman, paid $25 and David E. Lewis, 19, 41 Fisher Avenue, $15.

Joann H. Turnbull, 28, 22 Church Street, Kingston, was fined $60 and had her license revoked for six months for driving while impaired by alcohol.

Mary R. Hicks, 72, 30 S. Stanworth Drive, was fined $20 for failing to keep right, while Elizabeth J. Piper, 72, 26

White Pine Lane, paid the same amount for passing a stopped school bus.

DEBATE PROVES LITTLE

Free Speech—Sort Of. The debate this week between Nobel Physicist William Shockley and CORE Director Roy Innis on the subject of genetic determination of intelligence had been billed as a great trial of the First Amendment at Princeton University.

The question was this: Could Princeton provide a free and open platform for a controversial speaker like Mr. Shockley? The Stanford professor had earlier been disrupted during an attempted talk at Staten Island Community College. A debate between the same parties at Harvard University was cancelled in the face of student and faculty protest.

Could Princeton do what Harvard and Staten Island couldn't do? The answer: Sort of, but not entirely.

What was called a debate Tuesday afternoon in McCosh 10 was really a semi-private meeting of Whig-Clio, the undergraduate debating society and the organization that issued the speaking invitations soon after the Harvard debate had been cancelled. Mr. Shockley debated not Mr. Innis, who had withdrawn the morning of the debate, but anthropologist Ashley Montagu, currently serving on the Rutgers faculty.

In his telegram of withdrawal, Mr. Innis suggested the degree to which the debate had become a carefully staged event. The fact that Whig-Clio just happened to have Mr. Montagu waiting in the wings suggested that what Mr. Innis said was true.

A Smaller Forum. The ground rules of the event began changing almost as soon as they were set.

Originally the debate was scheduled for 8 p.m. in Alexander Hall, a much larger facility and a more convenient time.

But as pressures mounted against Whig-Clio, and the possibility of disruption loomed larger the sponsoring organization rescheduled the debate for McCosh 10 and reset the time to 4 p.m. Moreover, just to prove that Whig-Clio wasn't staging the event for the publicity, it announced that only student press would be allowed to cover the event. Each debater, however, would have 14 press tickets to distribute as he pleased.

That move resulted in an article in the New York Times and the elimination of any hope for some publications, including the TOWN TOPICS and the Princeton Packet, of gaining first-hand accounts of the debate.

It also was the last straw for Mr. Innis, who said that he was pulling out because of the limitation on press coverage and because few blacks would be able to attend. Whig-Clio also limited the proceedings to Princeton undergraduates only.

'Open to All' Less than three hours before the debate Whig-Clio issued a statement announcing the availability of Mr. Montagu, and denouncing Mr. Innis as a publicity seeker. The statement concluded: "In this instance as in all others, the Whig-Clio debate is open to all members of our diverse Princeton University community who wish to attend."

By 4 o'clock, 500 to 750 persons—many students—who did wish to attend but for whom the debate was not open were milling outside McCosh 10. They were held outside by police barricades and a large number of shield-bearing University proctors and security guards, perhaps more than 75 in all.

Inside, according to those who were admitted, Mr. Shockley quietly and tediously belabored his point that blacks are on the average less intelligent than whites, and that this is due not to environmental influences but to genetic characteristics.

Mr. Montagu deliberately and sometimes humorously answered the charges. No disruption occurred and the debate was marked only by a handful of vocal outbursts. "It was a bore," said one student.

Before the debate, a Whig-Clio officer apologized for the stringent limitations on audience and press and said, "I just don't want to take any responsibility or blame for those decisions."

That appeared to be the general attitude of all concerned, and the issue of free speech and the First Amendment is still an open one at Princeton.

PLANNING BOARD NEXT

For Blimpie Base. Next stop for Blimpie Base Inc. of Newark which wants to install a standup food and drink counter at 25 Witherspoon Street is the Planning Board.

Last week the Borough Zoning Board upheld a ruling of the Zoning Officer, Donald Harney, that Blimpie Base had to provide seven off-street parking spaces. In asking for a reversal of his ruling, the applicant had maintained that since its luncheonette would have no seating, it did not have to provide the parking. The zoning code stipulates that parking for eating establishment be based on the number of seats.

The Planning Board will determine the number of parking spaces at its January meeting. If the Planning Board sets the number at anything above zero, the applicant will have to come back before the Zoning Board and request a waiver, since there is no off-street parking available in the area.

In another application, Dr. Valentine Dedulin, 56 Robert Road, was granted bulk variances enabling him to locate a 19-by-40-foot pool on his lot. The proposed location violated the zoning ordinance requiring pools to be set back 20 feet from any lot line.

Impasse Over Restriction. William Bunting and the board, in a continuing case, have reached an apparent impasse over his application concerning a building he owns at 16 Vandeventer Avenue.

Two months ago, the board recommended to Mayor and Council that Mr. Bunting be granted a use variance to convert 16 Vandeventer into joint occupancy: an office on the first floor, two apartments on the second and another on the third floor. However, it attached a condition

In granting a parking variance to permit three spaces on the premises, the board ruled that two had to be located in the rear of the lot off Lincoln Court. It further ruled that Mr. Bunting must provide a suitable fence screening around the 17-by-20-foot parking area. Mr. Bunting protested that the fencing would restrict his use of the rear of his property. The lot is only 30 feet wide.

Mayor and Council subsequently sent the application back to the Zoning Board for reconsideration of the restrictions.

Last week, the board demurred. It voted to send the same motion back to Mayor and Council containing the same restrictions. Because the latter cannot divorce the restrictions from the applications, it appears that no matter what it decides, the matter will end in the courts.

Mr. Bunting is a Princeton attorney.

* "EPI is a new name to add to the list of speaker manufacturers. And the Model 100 certainly is a fine opening number... If the performance of the Model 100 is representative of the others, as it probably is, then we can look forward to a popular new line of speakers. It puts out surprisingly big sound... with exceptionally fine dispersion and excellent transient response... and ranks high on our list of bookshelf speakers."

PULLING FOR THE CANAL: Three mayors from municipalities near the Delaware-Raritan Canal try out a canoe launched from Kingston's Canal Park. CANAL PROGRAM BEGUN.

To Acquaint Public. Officials of nine boroughs and townships bordering the Delaware Raritan Canal have launched an educational program to promote public knowledge about the historic canal area. The program, which includes a 15-minute, multi-media report on the flora and fauna along the waterway's tow path and a land use survey of the canal's environs, has thus far been funded largely by a Ford Foundation grant to the municipalities.

Mayors, councilmen, and environmental officers of the nine municipalities have also discussed plans for increasing public utilization of the canal with representatives of the Delaware and Raritan Canal Coalition, an organization of the civic, historical, and environmental groups that is administering the educational program for the Hopewell's Environmental Commission and Planning Board.

Studies made by the Coalition have been furnished to the state's Joint Legislative Study Committee on the Delaware-Raritan Canal, which will issue its report soon. Information materials for public distribution are also being prepared.

Copies of the multi-media report, made on behalf of the Coalition by James Moise of the Franklin Conservation Club, are available to interested organizations.

Delaware Township was represented by Mayor Howard Sample and Ronald Bond of the Environmental Commission. Franklin's Councilman-at-Large Richard Messner was accompanied by Stephen Deeter of the Environmental Commission. Robert Patterson and Harry Berchold spoke for the Hopewell's Environmental Commission and Planning Board.

All Present. Millstone's Mayor Gail Anglada appeared with Barbara Harris from the Environmental Commission. Mayor Gerald Dowdren of Montgomery was also in attendance. The Princeton participants included Mayors Jay Bleiman and Robert Cawley of the Township and Borough, as well as Denyse Reid of the Township's Environmental Commission. Anne Kruger of South Brunswick and Susan Graham of West Windsor represented their Environmental Commissions.

BOARD POSITIONS OPEN. In West Windsor. Five positions will be open on the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School Board when the February elections come around.

Deane Bornheimer, now in the second year of his second term on the board, is resigning because of the demands of a new job and John Versnel is resigning because he was just elected to Plainsboro Township Committee.
Board members whose terms will expire are Robert Prigge, Richard Snedeker and William Watt. Mr. Snedeker and Dr. Watt have announced that they will run again. Mr.

FACILITIES ADEQUATE

No Major Expansion at Hospital, despite a projected 30 per cent growth in population, health care needs in the Princeton area can be met through 1985 without "major" expansion of Princeton Medical Center facilities.

That prediction, by Dr. Frank L. Barham.

highlighted The Center's second annual report to former trustees during a dinner meeting at Princeton House, 905 Herrontown Road. More than 50 former officials of the Center heard Dr. Barham base his prediction on a Medical Center program which has reduced an average hospital stay by nearly a day since 1970.

"This year," Dr. Barham told trustees, "we anticipate an average length of stay could be as low as 5.4 days, significantly below the level expected from a hospital our size and well below the state average. "By 1985," he added,

"that average conceivably could be reduced to five days, resulting in greater utilization of existing hospital beds and significant cost controls for the patient."

Dr. Barham, utilization review officer for The Medical Center, was one of five speakers to brief former trustees on present and future plans of the health care facility. Earlier, Medical Center Executive Vice President John W. Kauffman told the group present trustees are placing "high priority" on modernizing Princeton Hospital surgical and obstetrical units, as well as elements of The Center's Merwick rehabilitation and extended care unit.

Modernization, he said, has been "mandated by rapid advances in medical technology and new standards established by state and federal health care approval agencies." Mr. Kauffman also predicted anticipated national health insurance and a continuation of economic controls on the health care industry "could create major financial difficulties" for The Center "unless pending legislation is carefully developed."

Other speakers at the trustee briefing included Dr. Marvin R. Blumenthal, president of The Center's medical staff, and Dr. Charles R. Ream, chairman of the department of medicine.

The meeting was hosted by Medical Center Board President Ralph S. Mason who praised former trustees for "establishing the excellence in service and quality of care which has become The Center's continuing commitment."

MAKE YOUR OWN CHRISTMAS SAVINGS ACCOUNT and be paid interest from DAY OF DEPOSIT to DAY OF WITHDRAWAL

Why walk to a bank every single week to deposit a dollar or more in a coupon-happy Christmas Account.

You can save for Christmas giving the smart way at your nearest Princeton Bank office by opening your very own Special Christmas Savings Passbook Account.

There are NO special rules at Princeton Bank. If you miss a coupon payment one week with the ordinary Christmas plan, you can lose all interest promised. You can lose the little coupon book and have no record of payments made. Most Christmas plans offer interest only if completed over fifty weeks. That means that you get about 2 cents a week for the trouble of walking to a bank to add a dollar.

Not so at your Princeton Bank - where you make your own Christmas Savings Account - for any amount you name and get all the benefits, including interest. If you miss a week, you can make it up anytime. If you need your money you can have it and not wait until next December. There are no coupons to bother with. You can deposit more than your usual amount if you wish. You make the rules and deposit the dollar amount you want to put aside for next Christmas with a Princeton Bank Special Christmas Passbook Savings Account. And you can use the same special account for planned saving for any other purpose as well.

From a Craftsman, with Love and Skill

CRAFTSMAN: Redmond Marrow has fashioned, by hand, dozens of these antique miniatures. He uses jeweler's tools and a fine eye.

Tiny drawers that really pull, an incredibly delicate Queen Anne leg turned to perfection and just two inches long, a Windsor chair with spindles thinner than a toothpick.

Miniature furniture carved and assembled by Redmond Marrow has been on display this fall at the Princeton Historical Society, but the charming little pieces have been familiar to Princeton residents ever since Mr. Marrow began creating them a dozen years ago. His favorite, a chest-on-chest, was carved to be auctioned off as a fund-raiser for Trinity Church. Mr. Marrow is sexton at Trinity.

"It's the grace and character of this furniture," he says softly, as he looks with an affectionate eye over the little chairs, chests and tables arranged in the Historical Society's exhibit. "I love antiques! You don't see anything now that's comparable. . . ."

He confides, with a gentle chuckle, that he began carving because his wife liked antiques so much and had just bought a miniature chest. Perhaps, he suggested to her, their house would hold more antiques if the pieces were REALLY small.

Princeton Copies. Many of the Marrow miniatures are copies of furniture around Princeton.

"You see that bench? It was in Dr. Rampona's waiting room. I made a sketch and reproduced it. One inch to one foot—that's the scale of all my furniture."

One Princeton resident asked him to make a miniature of the family's Seth Thomas grandfather's clock. It's one of the few Marrow pieces—maybe the only one—that doesn't "work". Its face is wrist-watch size.

"Now, that picture-frame-mirror is a copy of one in a Princeton home, too," he says, "and I used really old glass for the mirror."

An unusual Windsor-style chair is one in which the craftsman takes great pride.

"I saw the original in New port, and I made my measurements and a sketch. You notice those arms? They are shorter than in most chairs. And it looks like a Shaker piece, but I don't think it is—see those back spindles? Up near the top, they are bent at an angle. They're thinner than a toothpick!"

All Together. To show how he assembles the furniture, Mr. Marrow has made a dough-tray, leaving it unfinished to show the dowel-like ends of the round maple toothpicks and the way he uses glue.

Wood is "whatever they use in cigar-boxes!", or, occasionally, pine. The Queen Anne lowboy is mahogany, and at first Mr. Marrow used mahogany almost entirely, but now he finds it too hard to work. He has sometimes taken a plank from the seasoned wood in an old, discarded piece of furniture, sawing, planing and sanding it to a thickness of one-eighth inch, two to six feet long.

The basic tool is an Exacto knife to make the first, rough cuts. Mr. Marrow has over half a dozen "very small saws," four planes, including a one and one-half-inch, a set of jeweler's files, and drills that start with a microscopic one-sixty-fourth inch, and range all the way up to a gigantic quarter-inch grandfather.

"The sixty-fourth-inch I use for making keyholes, then I enlarge them with a jeweler's file. Most of my work is with these files. Some are round, some square, or half-round. Some are thinner than the lead in a pencil."

For the "brass pulls on a highboy or chest-on-chest, he uses bent copper wire with a gold-painted template. He took a half-inch hinge and cut it in two for the leaf of a drop-leaf table. The chair-table is really hinged, too, and the table part drops down just the way it does in a standard old piece. One drop-leaf has a support which is invisible, but the craftsman insisted on gluing it carefully in its proper place.

Tiny, Tiny. Probably the smallest Marrow piece is a curved-top trunk. It measures one and one-half by two inches. Mr. Marrow cut, pieced and angled the top to make the authentic arching curve.

Just for variety—there is a four-inch violin whose bow is strung with real horse-hair from an old bow. And an upholstered English club-foot chair. Upholstery is a different technique, Mr. Marrow has found—"I need practice."

A few years ago, the Marrow collection was displayed at the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore—Mr. Marrow is a native of Baltimore—and many individual pieces are in Princeton homes.

"Time is no factor for me in making this furniture," Mr. Marrow smiles, "if a leg or a spindle breaks just as I'm about finished—and that often happens—why, I start again with renewed vigor. It's the satisfaction I get that's important."

WOMEN'S GYM STARTED

In Witherspoon School. Women in Princeton have the opportunity to use John Witherspoon School Gymnasium on Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The Princeton Recreation Department is offering a supervised program of volleyball, basketball, badminton and ping pong. Entrance is through the door adjacent to the rear parking lot.

CRAFTS WORKSHOP SET

With Holiday Theme. The Princeton Jewish Center is presenting its annual arts and crafts workshop on Wednesday, December 12, from 7:30 to 9. Eva Kaplan, art director of the workshop this year, said, that it will be "family-oriented" and the crafts will be new for the holiday season. One of these crafts will be a calendar wall-hanging marking off the days to Channukah with a surprise for each day.

Eva Kaplan, who has taught art to every age group and who holds degrees from Hunter College and New York University, currently teaches creative arts in the Jewish Community Center of Greater Trenton. Her students just ended an extensive art exhibit in the Trenton Museum.

Materials for the wall-hanging and other art projects will be covered in the $1.50 admission ($2.50 for non-members), but everyone is urged to bring scissors. Please leave very young children at home.

The event is being organized by Manuela Bornstein and Beverly Beer of the Women's Division of the Jewish Center. For further information call 799-2286 or 924-5493.

NO SEXISM

In Industrial Ed. Courses once thought of as "For Boys Only" are now attracting girl students to Princeton High's Industrial Education Department. One teacher reports 27 girls enrolled in the five classes he teaches. Metal, Power Mechanics, Woodworking, Crafts, Mechanical Drawing and Electronics all have girl students, according to Richard Wood, chairman of the Industrial Education Department.

More and more girls are expected to sign up for these courses, Mr. Wood says. One course, now given in the Princeton Adult School, called "Fix-it," includes plumbing, wallpapering and painting in its curriculum. School officials say it is the kind of non-vocational course that may be added to PHS for both boy and girl students who simply want to be more skilled in everyday tasks.

FROM LONG AGO

Medieval Christmas Music. Christmas motets of the 15th and 16th century, medieval English carols, dances for krumphorns and recorders will be heard on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in 10 McCosh Hall on the University campus.

The performance will be given by "Musica Alta," under the direction of Robert Moreen, and sponsored by The Friends of Music. This will be the second concert this season for the group, whose popularity has outgrown the rehearsal room in Woolworth Center and it has been moved to the larger 10 McCosh Hall. Members of the group are: Ann Sease Monoyios, Soprano; Mimmi Fulmer, Mezzo-soprano; Jessie Ann Owens, Alto; David Hoekema, Tenor; Daniel Pincus, Tenor.

Ric Merritt, Baritone; Michael Spence, Bass. On the Krumphorns and Recorders: Judy Linsenberg, Jessie Ann Owens, Donald Greenfield and Mark Zuckerman.

The concert is open to the public, admission free.

GARDEN SHOW SET

By Hopewell Club. "Sights and Sounds of Christmas" is the theme for the Hopewell Valley Garden Club's Christmas Greens and Flower show Friday, December 7, from 2 to 8:30 in the Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church in Hopewell.

The show will consist of 12 artistic classes, ranging from front door decorations, arrangements for the dining room table, to a punch party or a breakfast tray. Ten miniature arrangements, a class open to the public, will be on display. Juniors will be represented in two classes.

The horticultural division will consist of three sections, the Ilex, the Broarleaf Evergreen and the Narrow Leaf Evergreen.

An arrangement courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Allen of Allen's Flowers will greet visitors as they enter. Berried shrubs to attract birds to the garden will be exhibited by Roy Kersey, the television gardener.

Discrimination Opposed.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
(Following is a letter sent to David Cromwell of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad.)

The First Aid and Rescue Squad of Princeton does a very exemplary job and is one in which all the citizens in our community take pride. And many of us contribute funds for maintaining its high-quality work. Therefore, it seems a shame that the First Aid and Rescue Squad cannot see its way clear to open up its membership to women and thereby risks the loss of an opportunity to improve its service.

According to a Borough Council member, there is only one man who is available on call during the day. He and he alone bears the responsibility for daytime emergencies. The other members are out of town at their places of employment. If this is indeed the case, it would seem only sensible that the Squad be trying its hardest to improve this inadequate coverage.

It is actually incumbent upon them to tap all available resources of those very people who are in town all day and who are willing and able to assist in this important public service. Since many more women than men remain in town, it stands to reason that they may indeed be the ones to increase the Squad's effectiveness.

Anna Lewis is one young woman in particular who has expressed a sincere desire to serve Princeton in this way. Should she be denied this right purely on the grounds that she is a woman and that the Squad would find it difficult to physically accommodate her? Surely, it would not be so difficult to add an additional bathroom or partition off a segment of a room if the question of public modesty is involved. This would be only a fleeting inconvenience at best.

It is much more damaging to the Squad's operation and reputation to refuse to use all the available natural resources of our town. There are many women, some well-trained in nursing, for example, who would be encouraged to volunteer their time and talents. Also, when you go to the high school to recruit only male cadets, you are only intensifying the sexist stereotyping that the school, community and government are trying to eradicate.

Therefore, I urge you to take the best interests of Princeton to heart. Drop your legal action. Accept Anna Lewis as a member. Open up your ranks to all qualified citizens. It's the only rational, decent, and affirmative action you can take in this, the last quarter of the 20th century.

MS. LAURA GOLDFELD
40 Leabrook Lane

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Following is the text of a letter sent by the Joint Commission on Civil Rights to the First Aid and Rescue Squad, with copies to Mayors Cawley and Bleiman. We urge all citizens of our community who are opposed to discrimination for whatever reason to express those feelings by letters to the Squad.

This is in reference to Miss Anna Lewis' application for membership in the First Aid Squad which has been pending for about a year.

We find it difficult to understand the delay in admitting her to membership. As you know, Miss Lewis is fully qualified having successfully completed many courses in First Aid at the Red Cross and the YWCA. What stands in her way, of course, is her sex.

There is ample precedent for women on First Aid Squads. For example, Allentown, Cranbury, Kendall Park and West Windsor have women on their squads. We are not aware of any disasters often carries with it a more profound reaction to the theme than a more sophisticated artist would be able to offer. Spontaneous reactions to color, texture and concept remain untempered by the earlier judgments of teachers, previously acquired rules and intellectual restrictions which alter the work of a carefully trained painter.

ART IN VARIETY
At Squibb. The primitive

The absolute purity of response and technical innocence of the successful primitive is often combined with a strong personal sense of aesthetics and sensitivity to subject which compensate for lack of skill or complement the more basic expression involved in the paintings.

The work of two distinctly different painters is currently displayed in the gallery at Squibb International in Lawrence. Lillian Jones and Ralph Fasanella present personal views of their respective worlds in contrasting styles. Mr. Fasanella, a city painter, depicts his native New York in an intense fashion, which carries with it the hidden energies and implied violence that is part of the city.

Mrs. Jones, in a more gentle style, presents happily recalled scenes from a harmonious and tranquil America that is no longer existent. She has also created an equally gentle collection of still life.

The work of these two artists presents great stylistic contrasts. While both are concerned with pattern and texture, the approach varies. Mrs. Jones develops fine textural shapes and forms wrought from leaves, blades of grass and flowers which she carefully repeats, giving minute attention to detail. Mr. Fasanella uses major forms like buildings, people and windows with repeated patterns that are roughly executed. While Mrs. Jones focuses on the harmonies of her subject matter through both color and technique, Mr. Fasanella reaches for the discord, intensity and energy of his subject and projects the vigor of urban life.

Both painters have worked extensively and have received recognition for their work. Paintings by Fasanella are the subject of a recently published book entitled "Fasanella's City."

At the Eye For Art. European prints from the turn of the century through the 1920s reflect a colorful and romantic era in popular art. The show is dominated by a large collection of romantic fantasies executed in the '20s by "Tito" and the "Maitre de L'Affiche." Many of the prints reflect life situations of the times including sports, the newly-developed automobile and some product advertising. Others are highly stylized scenes of beautiful maidens in costume, Pierrots, lovers and pastoral scenes.

The style involves strong color and the carefully defined art deco forms of the twenties. Hair style and costume contribute further to the period feeling of the exhibit.

A few older prints by Mucha are in the more ornate and intricately wrought art nouveau manner. Lettering, background pattern and carefully developed linear areas all contribute to the visual wealth that marked the work of this noted print and poster artist.

Lithographs and intaglio prints by Princeton graphic artist Mayumi are also on display. Stylized figure studies are expertly worked in color and monotone.

At the Drawing Room, Nineteenth Century English watercolors and drawings reflected the elegance and refinement of their creators. Usually the results of a gentleman hobbyist, they were a visual record of the artist's life style, travels, and interests.

The Fifth Annual Christmas Show of Early English Watercolours and Drawings includes works by Sir Edwin Landseer, John Varley, Henry Bright, George Cattermole and others. Paintings are complemented by a few drawings including small, finely executed landscapes and nature studies along with a few figurative paintings.

An unattributed study of Napoleon is notable. It includes a small pencil sketch, two watercolor studies of the Emperor and a study and painting of a Mameluke or Egyptian slave.

Many nature studies are included in the collection. Birds, animals and sea life are all recorded with great fidelity. The landscapes range from extremely careful records of the scene to more flowing, freely executed watercolor studies using soft, translucent passages.

At Susuki. Major artists, living and dead, are featured at the B'nai Brith extended exhibition and sale at Susuki Galleries. This year, works by local painters and craftsmen, as well as those of nationally noted artists, will hang for almost two weeks at the gallery in Kingston.

The range of media and style includes all forms of paintings, graphics, weaving and ceramics. Stylistic approaches range from severe realism to non-objective work in varying styles.

Included are Picasso prints, works by Man Ray, Salvador Dali, Siqueros and Ben Shahn. Princeton community craftsmen and artists are also being represented.

At the Loft. Three artists are included in a group show for December at the Loft. Paintings in watercolor by

ART SALE SUNDAY

The Princeton Art Association has asked its artist members to donate, for the benefit of the PAA, one piece of their art work or craft to the Association. This work will be sold at an "Art for Christmas" sale to be held at the Association Studio, 3 Spring Street, on Sunday from 1-6. Sketches, drawings, pottery, watercolors, decoupage all will be available for Christmas gift-giving at a nominal price.

Jack Koepfel of the Eye for Art will give demonstrations during the afternoon on "How to Mat." Mr. Koepfel will mat, for a small fee, the drawing or print you have purchased. While you browse, children can work on plexiglass construction with Eleanor Thomas.

Music and punch will be provided for the occasion.

Frances Mellvain contrast with silk screen and acrylic paintings by Jan Gillen Voytko. Mrs. Mellvain uses her medium loosely in basically realistic landscape. Ms. Voytko works non-objectively in paint and creates flat, hard-edged nature forms using silk screen.

Douglas Mellvain sculpts in massive volumes. In the smaller bronzes and carved pieces, great power is generated evoking a sense of mass even when actual size is small. Fluid forms are seen in both figurative pieces and pure design. Many different materials are employed.

Patents are now expiring on many famous prescription drugs. Look for prices to drop as other manufacturers compete.

Some people are trying to beat inflation by investing in arts and antiques. Profits are good, but you have to know what you're doing.

Your hot water heater accounts for about 15% of your utility bill.

AREA FIRM MAKES OIL

Derived from Coal. A coal-derived crude oil manufactured by FMC Corporation at its Chemical Research and Development facility in Princeton has powered a U.S. Navy destroyer on a 30-hour, historic cruise.

The destroyer, the USS Johnson, was the first ship ever to use coal-derived oil as a fuel. After the Atlantic test last month, the crew reported that the oil performed satisfactorily as a fuel, and in a manner indistinguishable from the Navy's standard fuel oil.

FMC's research in this area began in 1962. The company expects that, if the program progresses on schedule, a commercial plant could be in operation by the end of this decade.

GIFT SERVICE OFFERED

Ry Princeton Merchants. Thorne Pharmacy, 168 Nassau Street, and the Junction Pharmacy, Hightstown Road, Princeton Junction, are participating in a new nationwide system that makes it possible to have a gift delivered almost anywhere in the country within hours.

Don't Stop Short of the Dock.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We all know from experience that the wise family plans, the wise merchant plans, the wise industrialist plans. The wise community also must plan.

Princeton is fortunate in now having the Borough and Township plan jointly through the Princeton Regional Planning Board. As with other kinds of planning, the passage of time and changing circumstances require regular revision of plans. This the Regional Planning Board is already well along in doing.

The facts are that en route it unexpectedly became necessary to devote intensive attention to urgent policy matters dealing with housing and the central business district, both integral - indeed, crucial - to the total revision of the comprehensive master plan. The Board's consultant was accordingly directed to advise on these matters in great detail, thus delaying completion of the total plan revision. Now the Board is seeking relatively modest supplementary funds to finish its deferred revision work.

As a former member of the Board I supported this program. As a professionally licensed planner I have studied the work of the consultant and have found it to be of the highest quality; it is both imaginative and practical. I therefore can see many reasons for continuing with the same consultant to completion of the new plan.

The relationship of a consultant to a planning board is generally similar to that of a pilot of a ship on the ocean. He is engaged to bring that valued ship through a long voyage, sometimes over a stormy and temporarily diverted course through previously uncharted waters, with unpredictable extra costs in time and fuel. Ours is a skilled pilot with an experienced and dedicated crew.

At last, not only has the port been sighted but the harbor has been entered. It makes absolutely no sense to stop a short distance from the dock.

Cheers for Field Hockey. To the Editor of Town Topics: It must be a bitter pill to swallow for a girl to play on a high school team that goes to the state finals and not read one word about her team's accomplishments in Town Topics.

For the record, the Princeton High School field hockey team did indeed come in first in the Mercer County League, became the Central Jersey Sectional Champion and defeated West Essex (the North Jersey Sectional Champion) to get to the NJSIAA finals. Unfortunately they lost in a very well played game to Cherry Hill West.

The varsity players were: Sue Hurley, Nancy White, Sue Wright, Gracie McEwen, Tutti Huif, Dinny Bullock, Barbie Sheehan, Martha Dorgan, Denise Cawley, Janet Helms and Donna Nichols. The coach was Joyce Jones.

New works by artists who have exhibited before at the Gallery, and by an artist new to the area, will be on view. The newcomer is Robert Raphael, who will be showing two of his paintings, "Field of Flowers," and "Towpath." (Each is priced at $225.)

Photographs by Brinton Whitall ($10-$15); woodcuts and framed color lithographs by Landau ($25-$42); woodcuts by Peter Vince and Wendell Brooks ($10-$65); watercolors by Robert Sabson ($25-$90) and etchings by Joan Needham, will be available.

POP AT PHIS

Silkscreens on view. "Eleven Pop Artists," an exhibition of two silkscreens by each of 11 artists who have pioneered the pop art movement, will be on display through January 2 at Princeton High School. The exhibit contains works from the permanent collection of the New Jersey State Museum and is one of a dozen circulated by the Museum's Traveling Exhibition Service.

The artists take contemporary life and mirror it, spoof it and attack it, and in so doing, document our times. Pop art images are signs, comics, ads, movies. Materials are foam, foil, and plastic. Themes are technology, commercialism, the exploitation of sex.

Artists represented are Allan D'Arcangelo, Jim Dine, Allen Jones, Gerald Laing, Roy Lichtenstein, Peter Phillips, Mel Ramos, James Rosenquist, Andy Warhol, John Wesley and Tom Wesselman.

Such works as "Jacqueline Kennedy I" and "II," by Andy Warhol, are classics in pop, though Warhol is better known for his portraits of Marilyn Monroe and his still lifes of Campbell Soup cans. Peter Phillips chooses images from "Mechanix Illustrated" and prints them on foil to emphasize the metallic gloss of our world. "Tobacco Rose," by Mel Ramos, has a female nude juxtaposed against a giant pack of cigarettes.

Obituaries

Dr. Max Sgalitzer, 90, of 276 Nassau Street, died November 21 in the Merwick Unit of the Princeton Medical Center. He was a pioneer researcher in the field of radiology.

Born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, he received his medical diploma from the German University there. He joined the staff of the University of Vienna, Austria.

Later, he became the director of the Radiology Institute at the University Hospital in Vienna. In 22 years under his direction the institute was expanded in size and scope. Dr. Sgalitzer in this period published hundreds of scientific papers on the use of X-rays in the beneficial treatment of many diseases.

After serving as director of the Department of Radiology at the University of Istanbul Medical School, he came to the United States in 1943.

Prior to his retirement he was a professor at the University of Colorado. He also lived in Seattle, Wash., and Washington, D.C., before moving to Princeton five years ago.

X-Ray Victim. Like other pioneers in the field, Dr. Sgalitzer became a victim of radiation at a time when no method had been developed to tame the beneficial x-rays.

He underwent more than 30 operations for skin cancer, always pointing out that he had helped prevent future generations of radiologists from falling victim to the same fate.

He is survived by a son, George, of Washington, D.C.; a daughter, Mrs. Richard Ettinghausen of 24 Armour Road; seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral and interment were private. A memorial service will be held at a time to be arranged by Mrs. Ettinghausen.

Mrs. Laura Birchall Warren of 4 Hamilton Avenue died suddenly in the Princeton Medical Center on December 4. A Princeton resident since 1914, she had celebrated her 59th wedding anniversary in October.

Born in Glen Rock, Pa., she was a member of the Nassau Presbyterian Church and of the Princeton Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Her husband, Ira S. Warren, is her only near survivor.

A private service was held at the Kimble Funeral Home, the Rev. Dr. William Tucker, pastor emeritus of the Second Presbyterian Church, officiating. Contributions may be made to the First Aid and Rescue Squad.

John B. Simson, 87, formerly of Hopewell Township, died November 26 in Orange, Florida. He operated a dog kennel on the Brunswick Pike and specialized in obedience training.

Born in Germany, he began his professional career at the age of 26 with one German shepherd puppy. He later was appointed training master of the South German Police Dog School in Munich and attracted attention for his mass demonstrations of police dogs in action.

During World War I he trained war dogs. Then he came to the United States and in 1923 established his Brunswick Pike Kennel.

His experience training German war dogs led to a captain's commission in the U.S. K9 Corps in World War II. He trained 200 dogs and 50 soldiers every six weeks at a remount center in Virginia.

He returned to his kennel and obedience school in 1942. Surviving is his daughter-in-law, Mrs. John J. Simson of Titusville.

A mass was celebrated in St.

George's Church, Washington Crossing. Interment was at the convenience of the family.

Mrs. Ann S. Norris, 70, of 70 Maple Avenue, Plainsboro, died November 28 in Princeton Medical Center.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Donald Sheppard of Westfield, two sisters, Miss Marie E. Sullivan, with whom she lived, and Mrs. Katherine Barksdale of Plainsboro; a brother, Thomas F. Sullivan of Plainsboro, three grandsons, and four step-grandchildren.

A funeral was held in Cranbury, Mass. of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Paul's Church, Princeton. Interment was in the parish cemetery.

Joseph D'Agostino, 85, of Grandview Avenue, Hopewell, died November 27.

The funeral was held in Hopewell, Mass. was celebrated in St. Alphonsus Church. Interment was in the parish cemetery.

Survivors include one son, William R. L. Dorman, and one daughter, Mrs. Jane D. Howe.

A memorial service was held in Trinity Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Elsie W. Virtue, 80, of Maple Street, Belle Mead, died December 3 in Princeton Medical Center. Born in New York, she had lived in Belle Mead since 1933.

Surviving are her husband, Forest L. Virtue, two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy England of Belle Mead and Mrs. Virginia Pool of Austin, Texas; a grandchild and two great-grandchildren.

A private funeral was followed by burial in New Cemetery, Somerville.

Ruth Norton Wilmer, 60, of Marshall's Corner, Hopewell, died December 1 in Mercer Hospital. She was formerly employed as an inspector in the General Motors Ternstedt Division.

Born in Hopewell, she served in the WACS in World War II. She was a member of the Hopewell American Legion Post 339.

She is survived by her husband, Luther B. Wilmer; one brother, Frank Norton of Jersey City; and two sisters, Mrs. Isabel Wyckoff of Harborton and Mrs. Rhoda Deegan of Harrison.

News Of The CHURCHES

HISTORY COMPILED

To commemorate 200th Anniversary. The Pennington Methodist Church will celebrate its 200th anniversary throughout 1974 with a number of planned activities.

To help commemorate the event, a "History of the Pennington Methodist Church - 1774-1974" has been compiled in book form by Mrs. Phyllis D'Aurechy, a member of the church.

A member of the Hopewell Valley Regional Committee and a professional genealogist, Mrs. D'Aurechy will be honored Sunday with coffee hours following both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. Copies of the book ($5) may be obtained then or ordered through the church office, 737 1374.

Last week, Mrs. D'Aurechy and the church pastor, the Rev. Lawrence E. Moore, presented one of the first copies to Bishop Prince A. Taylor Jr. in his Princeton office.

Ministers Return. One of the highlights of the church's year-long celebration will be the appearance in May of Bishop Taylor when he will preach on "Heritage Sunday." Former ministers of the church have also been invited to preach, beginning January 6 with the Rev. James W. Marshall, pastor of the church from 1955 to 1965.

Other activities planned include a Pennington School Day, "Women in Methodism," Home-Coming Day, banquet, family day picnic and special events.

Edgar B. Roesch is chairman of the Anniversary Committee; Gerard J. Rau is chairman of the Planning Committee.

CHURCH CITES TRUSTEE

Member Since 1924. The First Baptist Church will hold a testimonial banquet Saturday at 6 p.m. to honor Hasker Saxton, who is in his 50th year of membership in the church and who has served on the Board of Trustees of the Church for more than 40 years.

Now chairman of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Saxton has served through two church renovations, in 1932 and 1967, and has seen the continued growth of the church budget, property ownership and membership.

"Because of his outstanding years of loyal service to the church," says Theodore Williams, chairman of the banquet, "we would like to say thanks to a man who has quickly performed a big job."

Mr. Saxton and his wife, Christine, came to Princeton in 1924 from South Carolina. His first job was with the Matthews Construction Company. From 1940 until 1965 he worked as foreman of the Borough incinerator operation.

He is a member of Masonic Lodge No. 9, and is a 32nd degree mason. He served for 20 years as treasurer of Aaron Lodge and the Square Club. A veteran of World War I, he is a member of the American

Where

Where also

But at COUNTRY ANTIQUES

Can you find

All time of going to press, we have an exceptional selection of books illustrated by N.C. Wyeth. All the old time favorites such as "Treasure Island" and "David Balfour" and others.

The authentic "Librettos" of the Wagner operas. Translations and musical scores. The same with the operas of France, Italy and Germany.

A "Peter Pan" (Rackham Illustrated). "The History of Connecticut" by Benjamin Trumbull, 1797

Christmas postcards (Tucks) and really beautiful early pastel cards before Christmas became jolly

3 big baby dolls, maybe just old but tidy and well dressed and especially appropriate to be held and played with, not necessarily a collector's doll

AT LAST!!! Our clothes package arrived. Three weeks in transit. Beware the mails. Clothes from the turn of the century. While still unpacking we find:

a Princeton bathing suit, probably a learn suit of the 1890's, mid blouse and other intriguing bits. This group of clothes seems like a cross section of Americana

News Of The THEATRES
ON THE "CAROUSEL": In rehearsal with the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical that will open this Thursday at McCarter. That's Steve James as Billy, with director Milton Lyon at the piano and part of the big P.J. & B. chorus on the left.

FULL CIRCLE
With "Caroussel," The production of "Caroussel" that will open this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at McCarter rounds out the complete circle of Rodgers and Hammerstein musicals presented to Princeton by Milton Lyon, director, and Joan Morton Lucas, choreographer, have a cast of 125 singers and dancers, led by Steve James and Carol Davis as Billy Bigelow and Julie Jordan.

Carrie will be sung by D'Arcy Jannerone, who was Ado Annie last year in "Oklahoma!" and her true love, Mr. Snow, by Robert Paulus, a P.J. & B. newcomer. Nettie Fowler will be played by two singers: Marie Bogart, who will be remembered as the Mother Abbess in "Sound of Music," and Rita McDowell who has been in many previous P.J. & B. productions.

Bruce Chandler, the Jud in "Oklahoma!" will be Jigger; Amanda Aldridge will be Julie's daughter; Jim Hopkins will be the Starkeeper; Fred Sheldon the Heavenly Friend; Doug Langston, Mrs. Bascombe and Liz Fillo as Mrs. Mullins. Songs, for anyone who has forgotten, include "You'll Never Walk Alone," "June is Bustin' Out All Over," and "If I Loved You."

CELEBRATION
"Nutmcracker's" Tenth. This is the tenth year that the Princeton Regional Ballet and McCarter have joined to present Tchaikovsky's ballet "The Nutcracker" as a Christmas present to everybody within range of McCarter Theatre.

Three performances have been scheduled: Saturday, December 15 at 2:30 p.m. and Sunday, December 16 at 3 p.m., and Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. The classic ballet is presented in its entirety. A company of almost 90 dancers, guest artists and students from the Princeton Ballet Society will perform the two full acts of Tchaikovsky's work. Besides the three public performances, "Nutmcracker" will be given in three matinees for school groups from around New Jersey. Principal guest artists will be Dodie Pettit, a former member of the Regional Company, who will return to dance the role of the Sugar Plum Fairy, and David Anderson, a former member of the San Francisco Ballet who is serving on the teaching faculty of the Princeton Ballet Society. He will be the Cavalier in the "Grand Pas de Deux."

Members of the Regional will alternate in the principal dancing roles as follows: Columbine (Sherry Alban, Susan Olson); Harlequin (Gina Cipelli, Trisha McCullough); Snowflake Queen (Diana Zeydel, Judith Levinton); Arabian (Kasia Worrell, Christina Klotz) and Dewdrop Fairy (Judith Levinton, Susan Olson).

Others dancing in the divertissements of Act II are Linda Edwards, Pat Shwinski and Evelyn Richmond (Spanish); Trish McCullough (Chinese); Sherry Kaplan Alban (Candy Cane); Cathy Kozrzewa and Bonnie Finfer (Polichinelles); and Lynne Dennis (Marzipan). Larry Hunt will dance the role of the Snowflake King, while Willie Bonner will be the Rat King and Terry Nicholson the Nutcracker himself.

SCREEN SHINES AGAIN
At Hopewell Theatre. For some 20 years, if residents of Hopewell wanted to go to the movies on weekends, it meant a trip out of town. Not any more.

Now they and their neighbors in Pennington and Hopewell Township can go to the Mirror of America building on South Greenwood Avenue and catch a Bogart classic or a Marx Brothers Comedy.

True, it isn't an extra-wide screen but there are compensations. Like the $1.50 admission for the 8 p.m. show Friday and Saturday nights, the $1 Saturday and Sunday children matinees at 1. The seats are large wicker armchairs, the floor carpeted, the atmosphere informal.

It's all the result of Vicki and Michael Mokriski, Hopewell residents for the past five years. "We used to drive past the theater all the time," explained Mrs. Mokriski, the mother of five year-old twins. "There's nothing for the children to do in town and my husband got the idea theater and still uses it during the week where it entertains groups that help it in its questionnaire and consumer product research.

They let us lease the buildings on weekends," Mrs. Mokrisi said. Originally, she said, the building was a firehouse and they took the fire engines out to show movies. Later it was converted to a movie theater but it hadn't been used as such for 20 to 25 years.

For its first offering four weeks ago, the Hopewell theater screened "The Maltese Falcon" with Humphrey Bogart. Children's matinees have included Errol Flynn in Robin Hood, and King Kong. This week, all four shows will be a Marx Brothers double feature: "Duck Soup" and "Horse Feathers."

Future films—all 16 mm—will continue to be old favorite classics, stated Mrs. Mokrisi, who doubles as the candy girl in the foyer. She said that there was a suggestion box for movies people would like to see and added that response in the first weeks has been encouraging.

The theater has a seating capacity of 131. When movie buffs discover the delightful combination of old classics in a comfortable, informal setting at reasonable prices, it will soon be SRO" at the Hopewell Theater.

THE BEAUTY OF BLACK

Dance, Fashion, Bazaar. "Du Ewa"—or "Black Beauty"—is the theme of this weekend's show and bazaar featuring the Ajile Dancers of the Princeton Youth Center. "Du Ewa," the first production of the Ajile Dance Group for the fall term, will open Friday at 8 at the Center and will be presented again this Saturday at the same time Terrie L. Austin is director of the Ajile Dancers. All day this Saturday, from 10 until 5, the Center will hold the Ajile Bazaar. African, Latin and Soul food will be on sale.

There will be instruction in wrapping African dress and headgear, cornbraiding, and ear and nose piercing. The House of Black Pearl will have a show and sale of its crafts.

During the day of the Bazaar, there will be classes in black and Latin dance, free of charge to those who come to the Bazaar. The Shani dancers and special guests from Trenton will also perform.

Carrying out the "Black Beauty" theme, the Ajile Dancers in their performance will dance to Billy Paul's "Ebony Woman," Nikki Giovanni's "Ego-tripping," the Isley Brothers' "Who's That Lady" and Nina Simone's "Four Women."

"Kikora"—"Rejoiceful"—is an African scene featuring drummers from Trenton and Princeton. The "Festival Time" scene will include African, Soul, Latin and Calypso dance, and the Ajile Dancers will conclude with a dance from the Ritual Blackness.

Fashions for the show are both contemporary and indigenous. For the African scene, dancers will wear fashions they made themselves in a tie-dyeing group.

"Sour Comedy" at Intime Has A Delightful Taste

Theatre Intime designates its current production, Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure," as "a nasty comedy." I prefer to think of it as a sour comedy, in which the joyous laughter at human foibles of "Twelfth Night" and "As You Like It" has hardened to a cynical view of most of mankind.

Consider the main characters. Angelo, puritanically enforcing the neglected moral code of Vienna, succumbs to lust and violates (as he thinks) the maiden Isabella as payment for pardoning her condemned brother, and then compounds his villainy by ordering Claudio to be beheaded anyway. Claudio, in prison, mauls his sister to the ground in frenzied appeal to her to save his life by sacrificing her virginity.

The Duke, Vincentio, whose pretended departure from Vienna unlooses the unhappy chain of events, stays on disguised as a friar to spy on his deputy's governing; yet when his well-meant interference has set in motion a way out of Isabella and Claudio's dilemma, he prolongs the girl's suffering for the sake of achieving a dramatic surprise. As for the virtuous Isabella, modern audiences will question either her sincerity or her humanity when she tells her brother she would gladly die for him yet recoils with "O you beast!" when he begs her to pay the price demanded by Angelo.

In fact, there are times when the admittedly "low" characters—Pompey the pander, Mistress Overdone the bawd, the dissolute prisoner Barnardine, and the loose-tongued, lying Lucio—strike a refreshing note. They don't pretend to be other than what they are.

A "Gray" Play. Perhaps "Measure for Measure" is so seldom produced because the evils it portrays are too gray for open laughter yet not black enough to be the stuff of real tragedy. A second reason may be that it is a difficult play to do. The good is so mixed with the bad, the comedy so fused with the dark side of human nature, that a director must be hard pressed to give unity and a goal to his production. Theatre Intime's "Measure for Measure," as directed by Daniel F. Berkowitz, makes the most of the comic possibilities of the play. Its pace is fast. It sounds almost contemporary (the actors have learned how to speak blank verse comfortably). The River's Edge Announces...

A PLEA MEETS WITH STERNNESS: In Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure," Isabella pleads for her brother's life before the magistrate. Allse Matlovsky is Isabella in Theatre Intime's production and Eric Zwemer is the Magistrate, Angelo.

"New Year's on the Delaware"

OR...How to Celebrate a Most Festive, Elegant (and Civilized) New Year's Eve

On New Year's Eve the RIVER'S EDGE will open its doors at 8.30 to welcome guests, first, to a cocktail party in the Old World Garden, which will be transformed into a chandelied castle gallery — with colorful settee groupings, cocktail tables and a sumptuous hors d'oeuvres buffet before the balconies overlooking the river. This opening party is included in the reservation tickets.

At any time they wish, the guests may go to their individually reserved tables for dining — in both the River Room and The Club. Each of these river-view rooms will feature dancing throughout the entire evening. Chick Corvan and his Continentals will carry the beat in the River Room—Tony Inverso and the lively Club Combo will set the pace in The Club.

Guests may order their dinner choices from the extensive River's Edge menu at the regular menu prices—the famous River's Edge Prime Ribs of Beef, Lobster stuffed with Crabmeat, Filet Mignon, Roast Duck, Steaks, Sweetbreads, Dover Sole, Chateaubriand or Entrecote for Two. Then, the famous River's Edge Dessert Menu with such temptations as Holiday Mousse Pie, Peach Melba, Zabaglione, English Trifle, Rum Cake and all the colorful River's Edge Parfaits.

The center Garden and Garden Bar will serve as a relaxing meeting place all evening long also providing plenty of room to stroll from one dance floor to the other and enjoy both music groups. No need to stay at your table all evening.

At midnight, party favors—hats for the traditionally chic, noise-makers for the traditionally jubilant. And all three bars will be pouring welcomes to 1974 until 2 a.m. (when coffee will be served to any who would like "one for the road.")

Reservations may be made for tables of 2 to 20. Tickets at $12.50 per person cover reservation and all drinks and hors d'oeuvres at the 8.30 to 9.30 cocktail party in the Garden. The regular River's Edge menu prices will prevail for dinner and for drinks after 9.30. No increase in menu prices for the occasion.

Some far-sighted guests have asked us to start the New Year's Eve reservation list early — so the book is now open. Dress is formal and the number of reservations is limited, of course. Tickets may be ordered by phone.

For an elegant, fun-filled and delightfully civilized salute to a Happy New Year...

denouement is entertaining—once the onlooker has accepted that it is all a game, that the nightmares can be forgotten as soon as Duke Vincentio, the great Fixer, has put everyone in his niche. As one critic has said, the ending is symmetrical but unconvincing: hardly anyone gets what he deserves or deserves what he gets.

Of the actors, I very much enjoyed Robert Schnion, Jr., as Vincentio. Mr. Schnion has splendid presence, and he speaks Shakespeare's verse with warm regard for its meaning and its music. Another fine characterization is that of James Horton as Escalus. This young man again makes an elderly part convincing, in a different vein but reminiscent of his tour de force in Intime's recent "Adaptation."

Much more difficult is the part of Angelo, a creature of warring instincts whose interplay Angelo himself did not always understand. A subtle and experienced actor would find this role a challenge, and it is to Eric Zwemer's credit that he comes even close to being believable.

Isabella Questioned. The emotional center of the play of course is Isabella. Here a reviewer must point out what his readers sometimes forget—that he is not an oracle but just a person whose opinions may not be shared by others. To this reviewer, however, Alisa Matlovsky's Isabella is not what Shakespeare intended.

One wonders, to begin with, why such a bouncy, self-assured young woman would want to become a nun. And in the crucial scenes where she pleads with Angelo for her brother's life and arouses his desire rather than his compassion, instead of being softly feminine she is bristly argumentative. What I asked myself, does Angelo see in her? There is intelligent acting by both principals in these scenes, but not much conviction.

Numerous good performances help to keep the interest level high. An audience favorite, and deservedly so, is Joseph Harbeson with the spirited, witty impertinences of his Lucio. I liked also Mark Nelson's sly and wide-eyed Pompey and William Bowman's no-nonsense Provost.

Mitchell Ivers is effective when Claudio's manhood breaks down and he begs his sister not to let him die. M. Imee Marcos contributes an attractively earnest bit as Mariana. Angelo's spurned love who stoops to conquer in the end.

The costumes designed by Michele McDonough and the lighting by Charles G. Stone II are much more than mere accessories. The former are so right that they don't call attention to themselves. The lighting changes effectively differentiate scene from scene, and they keep the play moving.

In short, Shakespeare said, "Intime, here is 'Measure for Measure.' I dare you." Happily, Intime and Mr. Berkowitz accepted the challenge. The result is well worth seeing. Further performances will be given in Murray Theatre on December 6, 7, 8, 13, 14, and 15.

"BAD COMPANY"

At McCarter. The screenwriting team that did "Bonnie and Clyde" went on to "Bad Company," which will be shown next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in McCarter's film series.

Set in 1863 during the Civil War, "Bad Company" watches a ragtag company of kids who set off across the western prairies rather like Tom Sawyers. But the boys find it's really a nightmare, instead of the adventure they had planned. Jeff Bridges and Drew Dixon are featured. "Wedding in White," whose screening was cancelled last week because the print didn't arrive in time, will be rescheduled. Film subscribers will be notified by mail of the date.

TRYOUTS SCHEDULED

For Shaw Tragedy. Auditions for the Princeton Inn College Theatre production of Bernard Shaw's "Heartbreak House" will be held in the Third Floor Lounge of the Princeton Inn this Wednesday and Friday (8-10 p.m.) and Saturday, (2-4 p.m.) The play, to be performed February 7-9 and 14-17, will be directed by Jonathan Rose and produced by Robin Dechert.

"Heartbreak House" is Shaw's only tragedy. Written during the First World War, it is a bitterly self-satiric sketch of prewar English society, exposing in a Chekhovian manner the self-destructive aimlessness, pettiness and boredom afflicting Britain's educated classes.

The musical is being presented at 185 Nassau Street, in the building known to the Princeton community as the Old Nassau Street School. Parking is available behind the building off William Street.

"Mattress" is the musical based on the story of the Princess and the Pea. It is suitable for all ages. Ticket information may be obtained at 924-7006 between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

mezzo-soprano, will give a concert on Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Woolworth Center, sponsored by the Friends of Music at Princeton.

A senior at Princeton University, majoring in music, Miss Fulmer has appeared on numerous occasions as soloist. Last May she sang with the Princeton University Orchestra in their performance of the "Ninth Symphony" at Alexander Hall, and, as a member of Musica Alta, she was heard in their concert in October at Woolworth Center. A member of the Glee Club and Princeton University Opera Theatre, she is currently studying voice with Dorothy Miller in New York.

For her program, Miss Fulmer will sing songs by Dowland, Brahms, Wolf, R. Strauss and Barber. She will be accompanied by Nic Merrill, a junior at Princeton University. The concert is open to the public, admission free.

HANDEL, BLOCH LISTED

The program will include Handel's aria "Singe Seele," with Janet Wheeler, soprano, Jane Rosenfeld Seigel, flute, and Phyllis Lehrer, piano; and Bloch's "Suite Modale," with the aforementioned flautist and pianist.

Sopranos Janet Wheeler and Charlotte Regni will present several selections for soprano duo, accompanied by Phyllis Lehrer at the piano.

The program will conclude with a performance by the Broken Consort of selected compositions, including "Four Spanish Songs for the Christmas Season."

an excellent cast, the film attacks a difficult subject with compassion, perception—and a great deal of love.

Catcher Robert De Niro is sort of the runt of his team, a Georgia boy and it shows. He infuriates his fellow players by not even being too sure of the correct sequence of cards in poker; he is not only a loser and a butt, he's enough of a raucous backwoods character so that no one even feels sorry about teasing him.

His roommate on the road is star pitcher Michael Moriarty. Well adjusted, a bit of a snob with an ingrained savoir faire, DeNiro's dying forces him to start thinking about someone else for the first time. His indifference starts to turn

He goes out of his way to protect DeNiro's position on the team, and DeNiro, warmed by someone else's concern, finds his own playing improves. For the first time, he becomes a part of the team.

The moving conclusion is made even more so by a toughness and a discipline that will not allow sentimentality. It never seeks a tear DeNiro never seems really to understand what Moriarty is doing for him. Moriarty, in turn, even to the end, knows he isn't doing all he should—but the unspoken need, the feelings neither knows how to express is one of the most beautifully captured friendships on film.

GARDEN
 The Inheritor. In this fast-paced French thriller, Jean Paul Belmondo is heard to a large industrial conglomerate. Investigating his father's sudden death, he finds murder on an international scale. Great as a thriller but pretentious and unconvincing as a big business expose.

Belmondo, Europe's favorite adventurer, scarcely has time to get his double suit properly buttoned before he is plunged into the sort of hairbreadth escapades, double crosses and murderous females he always been involved with. Dear old dad, it seems, met with a severe accident in an airplane and it's the unravelment of why that accident happened and what it was that was destroyed with him in the plane that occupies the film.

The far-fetched nature of the film lessens the effect, but who cares. As in James Bond capers, the story doesn't matter; just the chance to get Sean Connery on film again—in this instance, Belmondo. As always, Belmondo is in fine fettle with his boyish grin and excellent physique. As the women in his life, Maureen Kerwin is seductive, sensual and dangerous, while Carlo Gravinga, who says no for the first two-thirds of the film, is stand-offish and rather bland. Those who like Belmondo will not be disappointed.

Suggestions That Will Make Christmas Shopping a Simpler Task

The last few weekends have been busy with bazaars, this week was the annual N J N P I. Christmas in Princeton house tour, but the next few weeks will bring our favorite aspect of Christmas, the musical productions. Leading off with a concert is Musica Alta. Christmas motets of the 15th and 16th centuries and Medieval English Carols, sponsored by the Friends of Music at Princeton December 8th. The next weekend, December 15 and 16, the Princeton Ballet Society will present its 10th annual production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker", and on December 20 and 21 the Columbus Boychoir School will give a full dress Christmas Concert at the Graduate College.

IT'S NEW To Us

Now, in the first week of December, the tempo of Christmas shopping is picking up also. Continuing on our rounds of Princeton area stores, we culled these suggestions for gift giving.

Almost any sized boy likes the latest or best sporting equipment, and Tiger Auto, Witherspoon Street has it all from ping pong balls to Raleigh 10-speed racing bikes. The store currently has more than 600 bikes in stock, which are all sold assembled and guaranteed.

For those who already bike, attach a six-foot pole that has a small orange flag on the top to the bike's axle. This makes for a safer trip as the flag can be seen between cars or coming up a hill, $1.

Other biking accessories include bike carriers for the back of your car, $8 to $47.50 for a four-bike unit, a speedometer that also records your mileage, $6.99, and lightweight waterproof Kangaroo Bags that hold your books, lunch, tennis racket, swimsuit, or whatever, $12.95. Last winter notwithstanding, many youngsters still hope for a snowy Christmas morning, and just right for such conditions is a Flexible Flyer sled or a roll-up rubber toboggan in blue or red, $2.99.

We also saw basketball backboards, $22 and up; boxing gloves from $13.95; archery targets of marsh grass or foam rubber, $16.99, and loads of fishing tackle

Center Sports at the Princeton Shopping Center is an NFL headquarters with an official football, $28.95, hats with team insignias, $3.25, and numbered jerseys representing the Eagles, Jets, Giants and other teams, $5.95 and up. If you have a large playroom or empty basement, a folding roll-a-way ping pong table is sure to provide hours of fun, $59.95 and up. To complete the table, Center Sports also has table tennis sets with four paddles, net, posts and balls, beginning at $8.95.

Then for hunters and campers there are sleeping bags, Stainless steel Swiss Army knives from $3.95 to $29.95, and a tensor disposable flashlight, $1.95.

Other sporting suggestions for Santa are a new Sherwood hockey stick, skates to whisk you across the ice (Hyde, Rally, Canadian and Daoust brands are here from size 11 child's), a black watch plaid canvas golf bag, or a new pool cue.

The Princeton area has many people who ski throughout the winter and at Varsity Sports, Nassau Street, Steve Spiegel showed us this year's newest boot. The Riva is a custom fit molded model by Hanson that is available in three styles from a recreational boot to a high-back competition one, $145 to $175.

Color is once again evident among the skiwear, and the look is tailored. By Head, we saw an orange parka with yellow and blue stripes, $88, and a white one with lavender, pink and green banding at the armholes and neck, $82. The latter also has a sweater and pants to complete the look.

Among the men's parkas we saw a denim blue one with red topstitching, $46.95 and a bright blue Bogner with white stripes on the sleeves, $90. There are corduroy ski knickers in tan, red or blue, $39.95, and a handsome natural English wool sweater that has been oiled for water repellency, $34.

Some smaller ski gifts include space-age glove liners that put an end to cold hands, $3.50; a white knit hat with diagonal navy and red stripes, $5.95; ski goggles from $3.95; or a Skyr windshirt in garden prints to brighten the slopes, $11.

Varsity Sports never forgets the camper, and a new shipment of corduroy Rough Rider pants has just arrived. They come in three colors and have many useful pockets, $12.95. We also saw backpacking down parkers, $77.50, and the super sweater that is similar to a light-weight parka, is $41.

There is many a big girl who would be enchanted to find some designer clothing from Elle, Chambers Street, under the tree this year. By Cacharel there are print skirts with matching blouses and pants in gabardine, tweeds, or a Prince of Wales wool plaid. We also saw a beautifully tailored Daniel Hechter blazer, a bold camel and rust or green striped wrap sweater by Kenzo, and Frank Olivier shirts to go with the Cacharel slacks.

The clothing at Elle is 99 per cent French and includes the most recent styles, such as the big skirt. Mrs. Alonzo feels that this clothing looks best with dark pantyhose, high-style shoes, and Mary Quant makeup to give your face some color—all of which is next door at Saturn.

At Clayton's Main Store, Palmer Square, you can find something for every family member. There are toys and mittens for children, Liberty ties for father, and many pretties for big sister, mother or grandmother.

Real camel's hair sweaters are here in either white or the traditional color. We saw ribbed turtlenecks, cardigans and cable v-necks, $34 and up. Then Talbot makes a classic acrylic sweater set with a short-sleeved pullover and a v-neck cardigan in a beautiful hue of coral-pink, $12 and $20 respectively.

We loved a white wrap skirt, fully lined and trimmed with blue, green and pink cording, $28. It also comes in green and there are turtleneck shirts to match the trims, $20. Other favorites were a scoop-necked cotton eyelet tennis dress that is sure to be cool during the hottest of games, $30; a mohair and wool stole from Scotland in luscious colors, $12; and Coblentz handbags from $33.

Landau's, Nassau Street, has been featuring a window tilted with Icelandic wool coats, sweaters, mittens, hats and other things. This wool which is light in texture and yet toasty warm is used in the natural sheep colors of black, brown, white and grey.

A poncho or cape makes an easy gift because one size fits most everyone. A fully-lined cape with a hood is $59, while an unlined poncho costs $46, and either would be perfect over an Icelandic long skirt or slacks, both fully lined and warm enough to beat the fuel shortage.

We also admired the many yummy colors of the Fair Isle sweaters. A bright green sweater has a white and yellow yoke design, a soft beige comes with pink and green while the grey has a pretty red and blue one, $30 for the crewneck.

There is also a lovely soft cashmere and wool sleeveless turtleneck and long-sleeved cardigan sweater set in natural beige by Tally-Ho, $56. Ilberman Geist has made some extremely comfortable looking velour shirts, pants and jackets in a range of colors from pale blue to purple to brown.

At the Princeton Shopping

Center, Bailey's has several very packable items, such as a long sleeved Qiana blouse by Ship and Shore. It has three small buttons on the deep cuffs, a silky feel and comes in white, black or beige, $14.98. Then for the junior-sized person on your list there is a one-piece jumpsuit with a layered look. It has cuffed red and white checked pants, a checked collar and a short-sleeved white sweater with red banding at the waist and

READING BY THE FIRESIDE THIS WINTER
Books to satisfy a variety of interests have been suggested to us by Princeton Book Mart, Palmer Square, and the Princeton University Store—
Alistair Cooke's America — which continues the spirit and design of his TV series, $15
Christopher Finch, Art of Walt Disney — details the career and art of Disney from Mickey Mouse to the Magic Kingdom with text and illustrations, $35
Erich Fromm, Anatomy of Human Destructiveness — a discussion of man's lust for cruelty, $10.95.
Lillian Hellman, Pentimento — a book of portraits, $7.95

Vince Lombardi On Football — a two-volume work published by the NY Graphic Society containing many photographs and a text written by the late legendary coach of the Green Bay Packers, $19.95

Dione Lucas' Book of Cooking — more than a 1,000 recipes of this great chef, teacher and restaurateur for over 30 years, $14.95.
Burton G. Malkiel, A Random Walk Down Wall Street — a local author challenges the mystique of Wall Street and points out some pitfalls, $7.95 (For those of you who haven't fallen yet).

George B. Schaller, Golden Shadows, Flying Hooves — the personal experiences of Mr. Schaller during the three years he studied lion behavior in Tanzania, $8.95.

Walter Teller, Walt Whitman's Camden Conversations — the finest of Walt Whitman's observations on 60 subjects from actors to writing taken from Horace Traubel's five volume work covering the poet's last five years.

Time-Life Editors, The Best of Life — a photographic collection culled from Life Magazine's many years of publication, $19.95

Gore Vidal, Burr — a historical novel about the life of Aaron Burr, $8.95

It's New to Us

sleeves, $24.95 The store also has blue cuffed pants and a battle jacket in the fade-out look with appliqued cherries on the pockets, $14.98 and $17.98 respectively.

Christmas and lingerie just seem to go together, whether it's a warm robe to wear on a relaxing morning or a pretty negligee from your husband. Starting off this list is a long quilted wrap robe in blue, green, or red gingham. It has a matching ruffle around down the front, around the neck and hem, and on the cuffs, $28.98. (At Bailey's)

Back at Clayton's Main Store we saw a white or pink fleece robe that wraps and ties at the waist, and this long robe even comes with matching slippers, $36. Also, here is one of the prettiest robes of all, a white quilted nylon with a blue nosegay flower print, $33. It has ruffle trim, blue buttons and can be teamed with a matching sleeveless gown or a warm brushed nylon one.

Another pretty peignor set by Barbizon has a white or pale green sleeveless satin gown with ribbon trim and embroidered flowers on the bodice, $17 and the matching long-sleeved coat is $40.

For a most glamorous gift of lingerie, stop by Edith's on Chambers Street and see the Pucci prints. One is coral with a flower design and another has blue iris flowers on a white background. There is a short nightgown with a square neckline, a matching short coat, a long gown with a v-neck, half slips, bras and bikinis.

Other gowns include an Olga with a built-in bra under a lace bodice. Available in yellow, blue pink or white, it comes short or long, $18 and $20. Edith also has a white or blue warm brushed nylon gown with embroidered trim on the front and cuffs, $14.

We also saw some comfortable robes—a bright blue green or red velvet toga with a gold rope tie at the waist, $24, and a lime or pale blue wrap robe with fringe trim, $32.

Edith's, however, has more than gowns and robes. For instance, we saw a furry blue or white turtleneck body suit that looks like mohair, $18, body shirt with a matching long skirt in an abstract print of brown, black and red, and beautiful long hostess gowns and caftans.

The glitter of Christmas seems to be reflected in the dressy clothes this year with satins, metallics and velvets. For a Christmas party, Iris, on Spring Street has black or silver satin pants with a sequined belt, $26, and St. Tropez swirl skirts in black, cranberry or dark green wool, $30.

All ready to top either of these are metallic turtlenecks with gently puffed sleeves in green, red, gold or beige, $15, silver or black metallic v-neck sweaters or tube tops, embroidered satin jackets in several colors, $17.50, and sheer cut-velvet blouses in green, brown or black, $20.

Following studies for a master's degree in comparative literature at Columbia University Graduate School in New York, she joined the staff of Princeton University Press, and later was named assistant editor. She has also been a free lance writer and editor.

As the national health field began to increase in complexity, she pioneered in the development of information programs at the smaller hospital level, setting up a public relations program for Chestnut Hill Hospital in Philadelphia in 1952 and later at Princeton Hospital in 1957, where she remained until 1966 when she joined the Division of Mental Health and Hospitals. In addition to her activities in mental health, she is a charter member of the American Society of Hospital Public Relations, a past president of the New Jersey Hospital Public Relations Association and is also a member of the New Jersey Press Women affiliate of the National Federation of Press Women.

Rip I. Pellaton, of 40 Wiggins Street, will appear as Menaechmi of Epidamnus in the Drew Theatre Arts Production of "The Menaechmi," by Plautus. Two Princeton area students have been named to the Dean's List of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania for the 1972-'73 academic year. They are Catherine M. Kramarich, of Knickerbocker Drive, Belle Mead, Class of 1975, with distinction; and Daniel A. Rosenthal, 83 Gulick Road, Class of 1976.

At Landau's we saw a red, grey or black bias cut skirt with velvet trim on the front and around the hem $32, and long kilts by Larid-Porch in Anc Dress Culloden (laven-der, green and white) and Regular Red Robertson tartans, $50.

Any of these would be perfect with a velvet blazer and Act 3's white blouse with a ruffled front and cuffs, $20, or Lady Manhattan's white satin stripe, $17.

A few other things that caught our eye were a bias cut skirt at Clayton's in a small plaid check of white, green, blue and pink, $36; a long Indian cotton dress in a small flower print on a blue or red background with a fascinating embroidered bodice, $35.95 at Bailey's, and a fur-trimmed short velvet coat that also is water repellent, making it perfect for any weather, at Elle.

Peeking out from below these festive clothes are the many pretty shoes at Nassau Shoe Tree, Palmer Square. We saw gold or silver snadals, a black peau de soie slingback, and a nylon open mesh on a low silver platform that gives a bare effect.

There is also a moire shoe by Hill and Dale that can be dyed and a gorgeous white kid or black patent Herbert Levine shoe with a "sugar bow" on the toe (so called because of the gold sprinkles), $18 to $54

Grandmothers right on down to the new bride seem to have a weakness for lovely linens and bath accessories. Stone's Linen Shop, Nassau Street, has many Christmas suggestions beginning with a gift set of white geranium embroidered towels. The set includes two each of bath, hand and face towels, $16.95.

For devotees of Vera linens, three new patterns are available in eight-piece placemat sets—a coral rose in a vase, sprigs of violets and a natural bamboo design, $11.95

Stone's Linen Shop has also remembered the hostess with a long blue and white gingham apron trimmed with cotton eyelet, $14 and the children with some calico prints. There is a Raggedy Ann and Andy shoe bag with calico pockets, $4.50; towels printed with calico zoo animals, a three piece set is $6.50 (sheets and a bedsp-read are here too); and calico stuffed toys, our favorite being a cat with a mouse in his pocket.

Then at Home Decor, in the Shopping Center, we saw linens for boys—sheets, blankets, and bedspreads printed with the team insignias of his favorite sport, be it hockey, basketball or baseball. Prices begin at $7.25 for the sheets.

We also saw the beautiful Atelier collection by Martex which includes white sheets with an embroidered flower border, pink or yellow stripes, and an overall rose print with an eyelet border. These prices begin at $7.50 for a single bed printed sheet.

Black and white bathroom accessories create a striking look with a houndstooth hamper, $13.98, and a jungle print wastebasket and framed mirror, $7.98. If someone on your list enjoys the whimsical, Home Decor has green or blue ceramic turtles that hold soap, toothbrushes, and cups, $2.98 each

Out at the Montgomery Shopping Center, The Hope Chest is the most co-ordinated bath and linen shop we have ever seen. Whatever your color scheme there is a wide choice of accessories.

For instance, just by limiting ourselves to yellow wicker we noticed a tissue box, wastebasket, soap dish, towel ring, two-tier shelf, stool and a watering can filled with flowers, $3.98 to $17.98—and that is only a start.

We also saw gold and silver dresser sets, matching guest towels and toilet paper in a green, brown or pink cane print, $2.25, line drawings of bathers and nudes by Degas, Matisse, Renoir and others, $9, and for the person who has everything—a handsome off-

Coordinating for Christmas For the table, use easy-to-care-for red napkins printed with evergreen sprays which team up with matching plastic covered placemats, an eight-piece set is $11.95. (Stone's Linen Shop)

Coordinated kitchen towels and aprons for basting the turkey come in two designs—one with a skating Santa saying Joy, and the other called Noel with a Santa holding a wreath, approximately $2.50 for both items. (Hope Chest)

Terry guest towels in red, green, or white with appliques such as a mouse carrying a cane, reindeer, bells or a Santa make the clean-up quick and easy. Approximately 3 for $6.75. (At Stone's, Home Decor or the Hope Chest.)

white cane chair that fits totally over the toilet, $169.98. As a final thought, housegifts that make meals or entertaining easier are always welcome under the tree. At Urken's Supply Co., Witherspoon Street, we saw a Norel 10-cup deep filter automatic coffee maker, $34.95; a Rival crock pot that slowly dunks to rich flavor your favorite casserole; and a pyrex wine decanter for a quiet evening nical, $3 for a one-quart size.

During the next few months, you may be making many fires to beat the energy crisis and Urken's has some useful aids. A multi-striped Sisal log carrier with leather handles will help you carry several logs at once, $6.50, fireside log lighters that burn 10 minutes will get the fire started, 36 for $1.49; and chimney sweep tossed in the fire will create colorful flames and destroy soot, $1.79.

For decorating the house, Urken's has gold or silver tinsel roping, a snow white spray for trees and windows, and an air freshener designed like a small poinsettia plant.

Here's an amazing fact that shows how high player salaries have gotten in sports. One team in pro basketball reportedly is paying one super-star so much money, that if they sell all the tickets to every game they play, they still can't break even!... And that's just the salary to one player!

Has there ever been a basketball game in which NO fouls were called?... It happened in a game last year in Maryland between Rockville and Paint Branch high schools. Rockville won 60-44, and, oddly enough, not one foul was called during the entire game!... The game, by the way took only 57 minutes to play with no foul shots.

Of all the pro football teams in history, which one do you think was able to score the most points in one season?... The record is held by the 1961 Houston Oilers. They scored 513 points that year, and that has never been topped. That team was led by Billy Cannon and George Blanda.

I bet you didn't know that the six girls in our office have a total of 108 years service in the insurance industry. It pays to deal with a firm with such experience.

Optimistic Hockey Team to Face B.U. Saturday

Princeton's hockey team, which in four days won more than a third as many games as it did all last season, will play Boston University Saturday night at 7:30 in Baker Rink. Despite losses to Dartmouth and Vermont, the Terriers are among the east's best and the optimistic Orange and Black will exceed all bounds of logic if its adds them to St. Lawrence and Brown on its current list of victims.

Tuesday will find Coach Jack Semler's team in Philadelphia for its second Ivy game of the season against Penn, which dropped its Ivy opener Sunday to Harvard, 7-3. Day after they play Penn, the Tigers will be in Baker Rink for their annual game with the cadets of Army. They were scheduled to face a strong Rensselaer Polytech team at Troy, N.Y., on Wednesday of this week.

While there had been optimism for this year's hockey prospects, based on the arrival of a 15-5 freshman team at the varsity level and the loss of only four lettermen from last winter, no one had predicted back-to-back victories over St. Lawrence and Brown. When they were achieved, by 4-2 at Providence Saturday and by 4-3 in the season's opener here last Wednesday, it marked the first time in Tiger hockey history that these two opponents had ever been beaten in the same season.

It was in 1967 that the Tigers last topped Brown at Providence, a true hockey center where the rink was

Tiger Five to Face Villanova, Rutgers Next

Princeton University's promising basketball team, which is relying heavily on sophomores this season, will play two tough eastern independents during the coming week in Jadwin Gym.

Villanova is on the schedule Saturday night, Rutgers will be here Tuesday and both of these well-regarded teams will be backed by vociferous delegations from their home towns. The starting time on both occasions is 8 p.m.

The Tigers opened their season last Saturday with an impressive 69-44 trouncing of Fordham on the Rams' court. They were scheduled to play Navy at Annapolis this Wednesday and were favored to improve on the performance of last year's Tiger quintet, which unexpectedly lost to the midshipmen here, 59 to 52.

Tuesday's appearance against Rutgers will be Princeton's last in Jadwin until the televised matinee with Penn on Saturday, January 5. The contest against the nationally-ranked Quakers will open action in the Ivy League for both teams.

Villanova's 56-46 victory last year may be difficult for the Wildcats to duplicate. They have lost their veteran coach, Jack Kraft, and two key starters, with newcomer Hollie Massimino depending largely on a group of capable freshmen. The Main Liners were no better than 11-14 last year in tough competition and may not top the break-even point this winter.

Rutgers, which made it to the NIT last March over loud objections from Jadwin Gym, where it had lost to the Tigers, 51-47, has six sophomore lettermen on its young squad as a result of its ability to play its personnel for four years on the varsity. The Scarlet will come here with but a lone senior on its squad.

Mike Palko, the 6-8 center, will go against Andy Rimol, while 6-5 sophomores Phil Sellers and Mike Dabney are already veterans after having started all 26 games in their first year at college. Rutgers, too, has a new coach—Tom Young, late of American University—as it seeks to increase its standing among the eastern independents.

FINE FIRST GAME
Tigers Did Everything Well. Most of the teams on Princeton's demanding basketball schedule will be better than Fordham, but it was nonetheless a difficult assignment for the Tigers to trim a major New York team on its own court in their first game of the season. So well did they accomplish the job that virtually all doubt about the outcome vanished when they rolled to an 18-point lead before the first half ended.

Two seniors and three sophomores were in the lineup that Coach Pete Carril started, and unless he experiments a bit more in the coming week, chances are he has his five regulars. Captain Andy Rimol was at center, with Joe Vavricka, one of the forwards, the only other veteran.

Barnes Hauptfuhrer, a 6-7 newcomer whose father played for Harvard in the late 40's, was paired with Vavricka. Armond Hill, the sophomore playmaker of this year's Tigers, was in the backcourt with classmate Mickey Steurer. The latter replaced Al Burton on a basis of his showing during practice last week, and may have the job nailed down off his performance at Fordham.

Among the credits this quintet earned was a Princeton rarity—ability to play a good zone defense. It not only shut down on the losers' fast break, but held them to one of the lowest point totals the Tigers have achieved away from home in several years.

Fine Balance Again. As they had in their exhibition last month against Athletics in Action, the Princetonnians showed fine scoring balance when they put four men in double figures. Vavricka led with 14, Rimol and Hill each had 13 and Steurer 12. The starting five averaged better than 50 percent from the floor, and the evening's performance from the foul line was a highly-satisfactory 17 for 21. The victors also rebounded well, paced by Hauptfuhrer with 11.

Off to a 6-0 lead, the Tigers thereafter never had a margin of less than four in the early going and were up by 10 midway through the opening period. This mounted to 18 before they settled for 38-24 at the intermission.

After Fordham produced the first four points when action resumed, Princeton took complete charge. By the time Carril began to send in his reserves, 4:03 to go, the board showed 61 for Princeton and 36 for the losers.

Ten Points Kept Tigers from 4-5 Season

While Princeton's 1973 football team has gone into the record books as the worst in the 104 years since the sport was first played here, it could have had an entirely satisfactory season (and a fifth-place finish in the Ivy League) had it managed to score a total of just 10 points at the right time. Loser to Columbia and Brown by a point and to Harvard by five, the Tigers were within reasonable distance of a 4-5 season overall and a 3-4 mark among the Ivies.

A backward look at the statistical story for 1973 provides two illuminating facts about Princeton's hopes for improvement next season: (1) there will be little, if any, upward movement in the won-lost percentages if the defense is no better; and (2) even if the defense does improve measurably, it will be meaningless should either Walt Snickenberger or Ron Beible be lost for any appreciable time through injury.

During the lamentable season just ended, Beible and Snickenberger together accounted for 1,958 yards of the Tigers' total offense of 2,609. This means that for every ten yards the Orange and Black was able to move, either Beible passed or Snickenberger ran for better than seven of them.

Fortunately for Coach Bob Casiola, both players will be back, but their physical welfare will be of great concern, because there is nothing close to a replacement for either of them. Beible, of course, has a pair of knees that do not withstand major punishment and if he is sidelined, the burden of running the team would fall on an untested sophomore or on Dave Mistretta, who last month was converted to a running back after two seasons of sub-par passing performances.

Defensively, the Tigers rarely showed well, although in fairness to the generally overworked platoon, it must be pointed out that the frequent turnovers which the offense committed sometimes put more pressure on it than the Tigers opponents managed. In contrast to the 290 yards the Orange and Black averaged on offense, it allowed the nine teams it faced 345 a piece.

Because it often lacked the scoring punch within the 20-yard line that the opposition could muster, this yardage discrepancy was translated into a 12-point differential on the scoreboard. In effect, the Tigers' foes outscored them, 26 to 14.

Ivy Stats Tell Same Story. Final statistics released for the 1973 Ivy season provide no warmth for Princeton's long winter. Last in the team standings for the first time in the league's 17 years, the Tigers were seventh in total offense (268 yards a game, compared to Pennsylvania's impressive 420); sixth in defense, yielding 323 yards a game—almost 80 more than first-place Yale, and seventh in both points scored and points allowed.

In Ivy action, where the lone victory over Colgate of course does not show, Princeton was even more outclassed on the scoreboard for seven games. Each time it played an Ivy team, on balance, it was drubbed, 25 to 11.

TWO YEARS TO GO. Ron Beible may become Princeton's first three-year quarterback since John Sapoch after holding the job throughout his sophomore year.

Best individual showing in the statistics was credited to Beible, who was fifth in total offense despite losing 53 yards as a ball carrier. He totalled 775 yards—less than half of the 1,572 compiled by the leader in this department, junior Marty Vaughn of Penn.

Beible was fourth in passing, Snickenberger third in rushing and split end Bill Skinner fifth in receptions. A strong word for balance is furnished by the stats. Dartmouth, which lost its first Ivy game to Penn and won its last six to take the title, did not finish first in one of the major team or individual categories.

The green was second in team defense, no better than sixth in offense, fourth in points scored and second in points allowed. Its highest representative in total offense for individuals was seventh; it was the same story in forward passing and sixth place in individual rushing. Dartmouth won because it did everything well enough, and nothing poorly.

when Princeton lost to Brown in football, 7 to 6, vanished in the opening minute of the hockey game. Although he had not dressed for action against St. Lawrence because of lack of time to practice in the four days after the football season had ended, Snickenberger was on ice with Mark Stuckey and Brian MacIntosh at Providence.

Just 21 seconds after the face off, the three collaborated on a goal with Snick on the scoring end. Early in the second round, the same line turned the trick again, Stuckey's goal giving the Tigers a 2-0 bulge they were to need when Brown came up with a pair of goals at 6:19 of that round and at 13:42 of the final session.

Sophomore defenseman Al Rosner, one of several newcomers who has made his presence felt early on the varsity, broke the tie with a slap shot at 15:13. Another sophomore, Dick Friesz, provided an insurance goal with a minute and a half to go. Brown pulled its goalie but Phil Robinson capped a the nets by holding off the six-man attack. He was successful in stopping all but two of 45 shots, while the Tigers launched only 25 on the losers' cage yet made four of them good. The major discrepancy in shots on goal was cause for concern in Semler's evaluation of the Tigers' performance.

Penalty Shot Ties Score. An unusual infraction in the third period of the St. Lawrence game cost Princeton the lead last week when the visitors scored on a penalty shot that brought them even at 3-all. Rosner's eagerness to clear the puck had caused him to grab it while he was standing in the crease, and the violation gave St. Lawrence a one-on-one chance at Robinson on which it converted.

Princeton took the lead in this game, too, sophomore defenseman Paul Dionne getting the season's first goal on a short flip from a dozen feet away at 4:19 of the opening round. St. Lawrence then came up with the next two, holding a 2-1 lead into the third round.

At 4:48, Captain Clay Kyle erased the deficit with a short shot from the left and four minutes later, Stuckey flashed down the length of the ice, poked a pass to MacIntosh and the Tigers went ahead, 3-2. The penalty shot that brought the visitors even followed with 3:50 to go.

At 19:17, both teams lost a man for a bit of dirty work. Five seconds later, Stuckey took a pass just left of center and beat the St. Lawrence goalie on a screen shot that never left the ice.

The time was 19:22—the year that Baker Rink was built—and the victory was the 500th in Princeton hockey history.

VETERANS DOMINATE

In PHS Mat Lineup Graduation was gentle with Princeton High School wrestling coach Tom Murray: more than half his team this season will be comprised of veterans.

Heading the list are co-captains Bob Zinsmeister and Mike Holcombe. Zinsmeister, who seems to be a shoo-in for the all-around athlete award at PHS, will compete in the 148-pound class. Last year as a junior, he advanced to the NJSIAA regional matches. Before he was eliminated he had advanced farther than any other previous wrestler at PHS. He finished with an 18-4 record. A fierce competitor, strong, Zinsmeister is expected to bring even greater recognition to Princeton in the fast-growing sport.

Mike, one of the three wrestling Holcombe brothers, should pick up the mantle of Keith who excelled for the Little Tigers on the mat last year. He will wrestle in the 115-pound class. This is his third year on the varsity.

Three others will begin their third year on the varsity. Chris Schneeweiss at 122, Phil Ebersole at 129 and Angelo Arcaro at 170. (If the weight classes seem unfamiliar, most have been increased slightly this year, the biggest being the lightest class, which jumped from 95 to 101 pounds.)

Arcaro won a championship as a freshman in competition limited to freshmen. Since then, he has been up and down in trying to live up to his potential. A dramatic, explosive wrestler who goes all out, Arcaro is exciting to watch. Very few of his matches end in a decision.

After a strong season as a sophomore, Ebersole was a disappointment last year. He is a much better wrestler than his record indicates and Murray reports that "he looks terrific so far in practice."

Other returning lettermen who will make PHS a leading contender for Mercer County honors are Jeff Drummond, 188 pounds; sophomore Dave Robinson, 101 pounds (he had a fine record for a freshman last year) and senior Tom Severson, 108 pounds. Also back is heavyweight Dave Gayley who wrestle about half of the Little Tiger's matches last winter.

Corson a Newcomer. Dave Corson, a junior newcomer from western Pennsylvania, which produces some of the best wrestlers in the East, is the leading candidate for the 135-pound class. He faces competition from junior Larry Howell.

Fred Eiker, up from the jayvee squad, who Murray reports has learned a lot by working out at the university, has a hammerlock on the 141-pound division. Senior Dave Gilbert and Vincent Ader, the latter undefeated as a freshman, are vying for the right to compete in the 158-pound division. Don Ringkamp, Murray's assistant, described Ader as "one who comes along about once every ten years."

Dan Poling, a 210-pound guard on the football team, is fighting Gayley for the heavyweight berth, while another member of the football team, Jeff Benfer is a contender in the 188-pound level.

Freshman Sal Arcaro, the fourth Arcaro after Tony, Nick and Angelo to compete on the mat, and Peter Coffin are pushing Schneeweiss. Holcombe must stave off senior Jerry Moriarty and Ebersole has to contend with Greg Robinson.

Last year, Murray guided the Little Tigers to a 6-5-3 record. He has a number of standout individual performers this season but just how good the team is will be decided early.

The team will open next Friday, the 14th against North Hunterdon, one of the perennial state powers in the sport. The Little Tigers have Modern Football stems from the "Boston Game", as it was played at Harvard. According to authorities, Harvard declined to participate in the inaugural meeting of the Intercollegiate Football Association in New York City in October, 1873, because the proposed rules were based on non-handling of the ball. Instead, Harvard accepted a proposal from McGill University, whose game was more nearly like English Rugby.

TWO AT PHS NAMED
Football Players Honored.
Halfback Bob Zinsmeister and Tackle Dave Harwood led a Princeton High School domination of the All-Mercer Football teams picked by the Trenton newspapers. The two co-captained the 1973 PHS squad, the last coached by Dick Wood.

unanimous choice for one of the backfield slots, while Harwood was named Lineman of the Year by the Trenton Times. Also selected by both papers to the first team of defense were end Richard Warfield and quarterback John Mooney.

Dan Poling, 220-pound lineman, was named by both on the first team defense. Steve Tomlinson was picked by the Times as kicker for the first team of offense.
Named to the second team from PHS were ends Jack Bayer and Mike Tomlinson, guard Jeff Drummond, halfback Ron Campbell and defensive halfback George Reynolds.

Although second to Notre Dame's brilliant Tom Voyda, who gained 1375 yards rushing, Zinsmeister was the more versatile. He rushed for 333 yards and nine touchdowns in 57 carries, caught 14 passes for 307 yards and four more TDs, returned 13 punts for 214 yards including one of 95 yards and 12 kickoffs for 390 yards. Two measured 80 and 85 yards.
A linebacker on defense, he was credited with 24 tackles, 70 assists and two pass interceptions. All the more remarkable when one considers Zinsmeister's 5-7, 160 pound statistics.

"Unquestionably the team leader and one of the finest players I have ever coached," said PHS coach Wood.

1,001 Yards for Mooney.
The second barrel of the PHS offense this year was Mooney who completed 64 of 145 passes for 1,001 yards and nine touchdowns. In addition he rushed for three more.

Three of those payoff passes were caught by Warfield Small for an end at 5-7 but elusive, Warfield caught 27 aeriels in all for 305 yards.

Harwood: 94 Tackles.
Harwood was credited with being in on 94 tackles for the Little Tigers this season, 21 of them unassisted. He used his huge 6-3, 205 pound frame to open holes on offense. On defense, he and Poling were outstanding in clogging up the middle.
Poling was the heaviest player on the varsity at 220 pounds yet he was deceptively fast and a fine pass rusher. All of those singled out for honors from the PHS squad are seniors

NET WINNERS HONORED
In West Windsor. The Princeton Indoor Tennis Courts on Washington Road in Penns Neck will be the scene Saturday at 6:30 for the West Windsor Recreation Department's annual award ceremony.

Five residents who were multiple winners in the township's annual fall tennis tournament will be cited. The field of competitors included 258 entrants in 25 events and all winners will receive trophies.

Triple winners were Mrs. Ann Kao, women's singles, women's doubles with Mrs. Lynn McChristian, and mixed doubles with her husband, Carl, Lynn Pearce, girls over 14 singles, girls doubles with Linda Lanser, and father-daughter doubles; and Mark Birnbaum, boys under 14 singles, boys under 14 doubles with Jon Hall, and father-son doubles.

Double winners were Vic Payne, men over 60 singles, and men's singles; and Kevin Little, father-son doubles and mother-son doubles.

Playoffs Approved

As a result of a 185-to-121 vote Monday by the New Jersey State Inter-scholastic Association, 22 regional high school football championships may be decided by playoff games instead of the present numerical rating system.

The playoffs would be held the second weekend after final league games on Thanksgiving Day.

Currently, teams are chosen as champions based on the male population of the school and their win-loss record in points.

Monday's vote would allow the schools to decide if they would rather have a playoff or continue the rating system.

In addition, Hun includes in its 22-game schedule such larger schools as Hamilton and Princeton High Schools, Peedie, Lawrenceville and Newark Academy. "There are no easy teams this year," said Leete.

HUN CENTER: Dave Clark will return at center for the Hun School basketball squad which is favored to retain its Penn-Jersey League championship. A senior, he is 6-3.

HUN FIVE AT BLAIR

In Season's Opener, Hun's Dave Leete expects to do better on the basketball court than the gridiron this year.

Leete, who wears the hats of football and basketball coach and athletic director at Hun, had to wait until the final game before his football team finally won a game. His basketball team should equal that record in its first start of the season when it travels to Blairstown Friday for a 3:30 contest with Blair Academy.

It will open at home Tuesday afternoon, entertaining Delbarton in a 3 p.m. game.

Leete can open with five aces. From a team that was 10-0 in Penn-Jersey League competition, 21-4 overall and reached the semi-final round of the state prep school championship before being ousted by Peddie, Leete has lost only high-scoring Kevin Tylus and Jim Lynch. However, the five players who started most games are all back.

They are 6-3 senior center Dave Clark, forwards Biff Hollowell (6-4, 14-point avg.) and Brent Bystrzycki (6-0) and a pair of junior guards: Tony Trani and Joe Logue, both 5-11. Hollowell and Bystrzycki are co-captains. From the outset, then, Hun has both experience and height.

Hun Still Rusty. "The kids know each other's moves by now," commented Leete, who added this is the third year that Hollowell, Bystrzycki, Logue and Trani have played together. Scrimmages against Florence High School and Wardlaw revealed that Hun was still "rusty," said Leete, but he wasn't concerned. "We're optimistic that we'll be able to improve our defense this year and we'll be both better shooters and quicker. We think we can play with anybody."

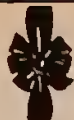

Last year, Leete didn't know what to expect. He had a team, with the exception of Tylus, comprised entirely of underclassmen. Before the season started he remarked that Hun wasn't going to be able to blow anybody out. "We're going to have to depend on hustle and taking advantage of the other team's mistakes," he said.

Hun won, but never by more than a few points. It became a weekly challenge to see how close it could cut the margin and still win. By mid-season, however, Hun had gained confidence in its ability to win and never looked back.

"Yes, we won maybe eight or ten games by the margin of a few points," acknowledged Leete, but he cautioned: "It could go the other way this year."

With so much going for it, though, chances are Hun will find the ball again bouncing in its direction. If there is a red signal flashing it has to be the schedule.

The League is well balanced this year. Leete remarked that Pennington, Germantown Friends, George School and Friends Central all expect to be tough this season.

VOL. XXVIII, NO. 40

TOWN TOPICS' Annual Appeal Seeks Your Help

"Christmas" means loving and giving and sharing. It means opening the heart and mind to an awareness of people who haven't much to give or to share, and whose desperate needs are often forgotten in the rush of life during the rest of the year.

At Christmas-time each year, Town Topics makes a single appeal to the Princeton community to think about Christmas in terms of loving and giving and sharing.

This year, for Town Topics, the annual Christmas Appeal has a particular poignancy. It was started in December, 1947, by the late Dan D. Coyle, a founder of Town Topics who died less than two weeks ago.

For 24 years, until he retired in 1971 from active work with the newspaper, Mr. Coyle did the research and wrote the case histories that touched Princeton's heart, and brought many warm and memorable Christmas to hundreds of Princeton's needy. This year's Appeal is in his memory.

Money contributed to the Christmas Appeal is disbursed throughout the year by the Family Service Agency of Princeton. All the cases come from Agency files, and are thoroughly documented. Names and precise situations have been altered to protect privacy.

How will Family Service use your contribution in the months to come? Perhaps the middle child in a big family will have a chance at summer camp. Here he can expand his young self and, perhaps for the first time, realize that he is a person and not just a brushed-aside, unnoticed part of things.

Maybe the worried husband and father, suddenly disabled by accident and unable to work for a long stretch of time, will be relieved by the knowledge that necessities not covered by the Social Security disability check are taken care of.

Maybe a fire, wiping out a home which was modest to begin with, has left a family totally destitute. In a case like this, Town Topics funds buy warm clothing, re-stock the larder and help the hard-working father and mother out the family back together.

Dan Coyle's anxious concern at Christmas-time was always for the children in his first Christmas Appeal. In 1947, he described in detail the valiant lives of a family with eight children, one of whom was crippled.

That year, Town Topics money bought toys and clothing and a Christmas dinner for the family.

Today, the Appeal concentrates on long-term need, although the tangible, immediate need is met promptly and compassionately. Here is eighty-year-old Sally, doing badly at school, repeating a grade, struggling with the dual handicap of learning disabilities and speech impairment. She seemed to have a permanent foothold at the bottom of the class.

Then her father lost his job, which meant cutbacks in a family budget already pared to the bone. Payment for special help for Sally-out of the question. Town Topics provided a scholarship for her to a speech rehabilitation clinic, where she was enrolled in an intensive program, working closely with a teacher five days a week. Specialized training helped her overcome her problems. This meant she did better in school and this, in turn, gave her a self-confidence she had never had before.

Michael, only four years old, was distraught and uncomprehending over the disaster of his mother's serious operation. A shy, withdrawn and clinging child, Michael was terrified of further separation from his mother after her return from the hospital. The social workers felt that Michael should go to nursery school a few hours each morning so his mother could rest and regain her strength.
